Summit Talks Topic as Ike Confers With Segni

President Wants His Grandchildren to Have Better Life Than He Had

BY JOHN SCALI

Rome —(AP)— President Eisenhower discussed western summit prospects today with Italy's premier after pledging to strive for "a better life" for his grandchildren than he had himself.

Eisenhower, in a jovial mood despite Rome's continuing rain, met with Prime Minister Antonio Segni to review decisions expected at the Paris western summit talks Dec. 19.

The conference with Segni, Eisenhower's second since arriving in Rome yesterday, lasted nearly two hours at the premier's office ending just before lunch time.

White House Press Sec. James C. Hagerty told newsmen that Segni and Italian Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella outlined their views on the forthcoming Paris meeting. He also reported that the Italians gave their views of European problems generally.

Answering questions, Hagerty said the Italian government did not request a role as an observer at the Paris meeting which is to bring together Eisenhower and the leaders of Britain, France and West Germany.

Policy Not Changed

Earlier, the president had made his pledge to seek a better life for his grandchildren in a short talk at the U.S. embassy.

Several hundred persons, mostly Italian government workers, cheered Eisenhower as he emerged and drove directly back to the Quirinal palace, where he is staying during the 48-hour Rome visit.

The president reportedly assured the Italian leaders the United States intends to press ahead determinedly with a policy of building Europe's defenses against communism.

Federal Mediators Offer Suggestions To Conclude Strike

Proposals to be Made to . Both Sides in Steel Dispute

BY NORMAN WALKER

Washington —(AP)— Government mediators promised to offer some steel settlement proposals today at the first face-to-face meeting of industry and union negotiators held since Tuesday.

Director Joseph F. Finnegan of the federal mediation and conciliation service said in advance "we'll have some suggestions." He did not spell them out, but said his team of mediators has been broaching peace plans to both sides right along anyway.

Finnegan explained that separate talks he has presided over daily since last Tuesday with the industry and then the steelworkers union have been exploratory and "routine mediation."

Outlook Not Bright

He said he has been trying to reconcile conflicting cost estimates with "the slide rule boys" — or the technicians on such matters as insurance and pensions.

There seemed to be little ground to be optimistic for a prompt settlement as called for Thursday night by President Eisenhower. The president said the public simply won't stand much longer for continued labor-management warfare in the steel industry.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sec. of Labor James P. Mitchell discussed the strike situation yesterday. Neither indicated that any definite course of action was mapped.

Mitchell said he is hopeful the strike will be settled before expiration of the court-ordered cooling off period.

Renewal of the 116-day strike is threatened when the Taft-Hartley injunction expires on Jan. 26.

R. Conrad Cooper, top industry negotiator, pointed out that union terms are nearly double what the industry is willing to settle for.

Brazil Revolt Brought to End, President Says

Some Rebels Flee, Some Captured, Others in Jungle

Rio de Janeiro —(AP)— President Juscelino Kubitschek said the second revolt against his regime.

About 25 rebel Brazilian air force and army officers have been scattered since seizing five planes early Thursday. At least two officers fled to Argentina in a hijacked airliner and were given asylum. Several others were captured and the rest headed deep into the jungles of northwest Brazil.

"I consider the incident closed," Kubitschek said last night, declaring that "events like these never will be repeated in our country."

No Popular Backing

The midge revolt aroused no popular support and even anti-government politicians and newspapers rallied around Kubitschek.

Several of the ringleaders were involved in a similar abortive revolt in 1956 which was crushed in 18 days. Kubitschek showed leniency and granted pardons to the officers then.

In the latest propaganda protest the officers charged the Kubitschek government with being corrupt and communist-tainted. They flew the stolen planes to the small jungle of Aragarças, 1,100 miles northwest of Brazil, and sought to rally support.

Government patrol ops took over the town and its airstrip early yesterday, shortly after the rebels pulled out.

One of the rebel leaders, Air Force Maj. Heber Teixeira Pinto, fled to Buenos Aires in the Panair do Brasil Constellation commandeered Wednesday while on a regular passenger run from Rio to Belém, Brazil.

Tighten Rules For Air Pilot

Must Retire From Commercial Flights When They Reach 60

Washington —(AP)— Starting next March 15, airline pilots must quit flying at the age of 60, by order of the Federal Aviation Agency. At present there is no age limit.

The Airline Pilots association attacked the FAA order yesterday as "whimsical and capricious." It said there was no shred of evidence to justify such a rule and added it would fight the order in federal courts.

However, the Air Transport association, an industry group, said the age limit was "reasonable and judicious."

Public Safety Issue

FAA Administrator E. R. Quesada also set stricter new standards for co-pilots. He said both actions were needed to ensure public safety in an age where jet airliners carry up to 165 passengers at 550 miles an hour.

Quesada said there never has been any proof that pilot age was a factor in airline accidents. But he said:

"The regulation is based on medical facts that clearly establish that sudden incapacitation due primarily to heart attack and strokes... become significantly more frequent in any group reaching age 60, and such attacks cannot be predicted on an individual basis by prior medical examinations."

"The hazards are further increased in the case of scheduled airlines by the fact that older pilots fly the bigger and faster jets, carrying more passengers over longer routes."

A pilot must take a physical examination at least every six months and is tested for proficiency at least twice a year.

Louisiana Electing Successor to Long

11 Run for Governorship As Democrats Have Primary

BY JAMES McLEAN

New Orleans —(AP)— About 800,000 Louisianans are expected to vote today on a successor to the state's fiery Gov. Earl Long.

Eleven candidates, an all-time record, seek the governorship in the first Democratic primary, which also will nominate other top state officials, a new legislature and hundreds of local office-holders. In Louisiana the Democratic nomination amounts to election.

Five of the candidates for governor are seasoned campaigners.

Politicians and public samplings show two are most likely to enter a runoff Jan. 9, unless one candidate sweeps to a majority victory. They are New Orleans Mayor de Lesseps Morrison, 47, and former Gov. Jimmie Davis, 53, both promising cleaner, more responsible leadership in the state.

Others in the Limelight

Besides Morrison and Davis, three expected to show big strength are former Gov. James A. Noe, pledging to carry on the Long dynasty; State Sen. William Ramoth, Louisiana's state segregationist voice; and State Representative William J. Dodd, one-time Long crown prince who broke with the governor years ago.

Blasted Tanker Limp to Port

Norfolk, Va. —(AP)— An explosion-wrecked tanker limped toward Norfolk today at a speed of about six knots. The Gulf Tiger, owned by the Gulf Oil company, is scheduled to arrive late today or tomorrow.

An explosion split the tanker's deck and hull about 65 miles due east of Cape Lookout, N.C., Friday.

She radioed for assistance but said later no injuries were incurred and she was in no immediate danger.

The coast guard reported the Gulf Tiger was not taking water. Coast guard ships and aircraft and other merchant ships hurried to the tanker's side.

Ask Restoration Of Road Cuts

Governors Will Bring Request to Ike and Congress

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. —(AP)— A committee of governors will go to President Eisenhower and Congress next month and ask them to restore cuts in the highway fund.

One of the governors' big problems is suggesting a practical way of getting the necessary money. A specific source was proposed Friday at a meeting here of the council of state governments, but the state leaders did not go on record in favor of it.

The source: All the money the federal government receives from taxes concerning gasoline and cars.

Bad Taste

The council was on the verge of instructing the governors' committee to suggest that source to the president and Congress. But a plea quickly came from Gov. James T. Blair, Jr. (D-Mo) against tying the committee's hands.

"I think it would be in bad taste for this group to try to limit or define, directly or indirectly, the governors' committee in its talks next month in Washington," Blair said.

After listening to Blair's argument, the council voted to pocket the proposal.

But the council did go on record expressing deep concern over the cuts. Washington reports have indicated that the giant interstate highway program would be cut more than a billion dollars during the next three years.

Chiang Says Time Ripe For Revolt in Red China

BY ELTON C. FAY

Taipei —(AP)— President Chiang Kai-shek said today the time is ripe for revolt on the communist-ruled mainland.

At the same time, however, the president said the revolt must start before he could move across Formosa Strait to help against Mao Tze-tung, the red ruler.

Chiang reminded a group of visiting U. S. reporters that his nationalist government has a commitment with the United States. This was a reference to a Chiang pledge not to attack the mainland.

Poisonous Insecticide Causes Youth's Death

Dallas, Texas —(AP)— Bobby Joe Love, 16, died here Friday after he drank from a hose coated with a poisonous insecticide.

Sheriff's deputies said the youth apparently drank water from a hose used to fill drums with insecticides and water.

They 'Met Competition'

Payola From 9 Firms Deceived Public on Recordings, FTC Says

Washington —(AP)— The public has been fooled and competition has been suppressed by nine companies that slipped payola to disc jockeys, the federal trade commission charges.

In return for the payola, the FTC said yesterday, the radio and TV disc jockeys gave the firms' recordings a good spin—sometimes playing the same records as often as six to ten times a day.

Public Deceived

Because these payments were concealed, the FTC said, the public was deceived into thinking that the records involved actually were among the most popular ones.

A spokesman for the Edward S. Barsky company, a Philadelphia record distributing firm, one of the nine named by the FTC, made this comment to a newsmen:

"Sure we paid disc jockeys. We met competition. Every company was involved in one way or another. We merely fought the battle to sell records, and that was to pay some of the bigger disc jockeys."

Another of the companies named was Radio Corporation of America.

The FTC did not name any disc jockeys as the receivers of payola.

The television industry yesterday amended its code of conduct to ban all rigged quiz shows, payola and deceptive advertising. The television board of the National Association of Broadcasters said it was doing so to clean its own house.

The FTC complaints named three manufacturers and six record distributors.

Besides RCA, the two manufacturers named were London Records, Inc., New York, and Bernard Lowe Enterprises, Inc., Philadelphia. RCA and London acknowledged receipt of the complaints, but referred them to lawyers and had no comment.

Disc Jockeys Fined

All but one of the record distributors were Philadelphia firms. In addition to Barsky, they were Chips Distributing Company, Inc., David Rosen, Inc., Universal Records Distributing Corporation, and Sparks Music Distributors, Inc. The ninth firm was Main Line Cleveland Inc., Cleveland, Ohio.

Two disc jockeys for Radio Station KYW in Cleveland were fired yesterday. They were Joe Finan and Wes Hopkins. Finan said he and Hopkins got $50 a week from

Cuba President Denies Rebel Aid Charge

Havana —(AP)— President Osvaldo Dorticos today denied as absurd accusations brought by Guatemala before the Organization of American States (OAS) that Cuba is supporting rebel opposition in Guatemala.

Dorticos said in a press statement Cuba "is determined to maintain its policy of not interfering in the internal affairs of other countries and we have given obvious proof of this principle."

He also accused Guatemala of allowing Cuban "counter-revolutionaries" to operate from Guatemala "without the slightest molestation by that government."

Dorticos said Cuba has not raised the question of anti-Cuban activities before the OAS because "we don't depend on others but will ourselves defend our territorial integrity and our revolutionary works."

Back Safe on Land

Sam, Space Monkey, Removed From Atlantic

Norfolk, Va. —(AP)— Sam, the monkey who soared 55 miles above the earth in a space capsule, returned to dry land today aboard the destroyer Borie, which had plucked him from the ocean.

The monkey and his capsule were recovered from the Atlantic ocean 200 miles off the Virginia coast some three hours after he had been plucked from Wallops Island on top a Little Joe booster rocket at 11:15 a. m. yesterday.

Sam was encased in a Project Mercury capsule, the type in which an attempt will be made to send a man into a space orbit.

The monkey was met on his arrival here by Maj. Clyde Green, an air force physician from the aviation school of medicine at Brooks Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas.

Green and an assistant carried Sam, still encased in a small cylindrical chamber and covered with a blanket off the Borie, put him in an air force station wagon and whisked him off to the laboratories of the national aeronautics and space agency at Langley Air Force Base, Va.

Principal purpose of the project as far as NASA was concerned was to test at high altitude the escape system of the capsule. A spokesman said, merely permitted Sam to go along for the ride at the request of the school of aviation medicine.

Lashed securely on the Borie's deck when she arrived was the bell-shaped capsule, 10 feet high and 6 feet in diameter, which her crew had recovered in high seas.

The capsule was discolored by sea marker dye which it had released upon impact with the ocean.

Plenty of Oddball Accidents Around World During '59, Council Says

BY PAUL JONES
Of The National Safety Council

By the way — has anything odd or unusual happened to you lately? Something really freakish?

Have you, for example, lost your dress in traffic to a passing stranger? Has a house run into your car? Have any of you golfers shot two birdies with one stroke?

Nothing like that has happened to you in 1959? The National Safety Council's annual roundup of freak accidents has turned up not only the foregoing oddities, but many more.

Miss June Sandy, a highly proper young lady of 17, was riding her bike demurely down the crowded main street of highly proper Whitstable, England, on a busy Saturday afternoon when a passing motor scooter brushed against her. Whoosh! There went Miss Sandy's dress down the street on the scooter.

Ted Goreau, of Hampton, S. C., was understandably skeptical when his wife explained away a dent in the fender of the family car by insisting that a house had run into it. She wasn't kidding. The car had been parked. The house was being moved down the street.

Car-Boat Collision

Air Force Warrant Officer Mort Schechter would have found it easy to believe Mrs. Goreau. Driving along in Anchorage, Alaska, during a severe windstorm, his car was struck by a 14-foot aluminum boat which had sailed nearly half a block in the gale before it crashed through Schechter's windshield.

Every golfer is always hoping for a birdie. But Buddy Graham, of Huntington, W. Va., got not one but year-old son John changed seats — and cars — informally when their Model T touring car collided headon with a more modern convertible near Pembroke, Mass. The impact of the crash sent young John flying through the air into the lap of the driver of the other car, John Swan, Jr. Pop Richmond soared gracefully from his seat into the rear seat of the other car. Neither father nor son was hurt severely, nor was Swan. But they all agreed there must be an easier way to change seats.

The Rev. Walter Herron had flown his plane 250,000 miles without an accident as a missionary in the wild jungles of South America. But home on a vacation at Watkins Glen, N.Y., he fell off a wing of his plane as he was cleaning it and broke his leg.

Maybe they're making these little cars too little. A raccoon knocked one off the road when they collided near Rhineland, Wis., driver John Welch ruefully reported. And a jackrabbit wrecked another little sportster — in Alpine, Texas, to the dismay of owner Floyd Richmond. The latter contest may not have been quite fair, since it was a Texas jackrabbit.

Shot by House?

And in New Tazewell, Tenn., Phil Greer was shot by a house. The house was on fire and the flames caused a bullet to explode. Greer was struck in the shoulder.

Have you ever longed to get your hands on a reckless driver? Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Talley, of Waco, Texas, had their chance when they saw a car veer off the street, careen wildly across a vacant lot and bang into a tree.

They pulled the driver from behind the wheel, spanked him good and hard and put him to bed without his supper. He was their 3-year-old son Tommy. He had climbed into a parked car, turned on the ignition and let nature take its course.

The driver who ran down Farmer Lachian Simpson, of Tottenham, New South Wales, with a tractor had a good reason to feel sheepish. He was a sheep! The animal was being given a lift back to the barn when Simpson got off the tractor to make a mechanical adjustment. The sheep reached out, kicked the engine into gear and ran over his benefactor's arm.

Sticky Stop

You see a lot of arrogant drivers on the road these days. But you never saw one as stuck up as Paperhanger Leo Beasley was in Omaha the day a 5-gallon can of quick-dry paste spilled all over him and his car when he made a quick stop in traffic. The only way Beasley ever got loose from the car seat was by sliding out of his pants right in public. And it took 400 gallons of water to get the pesky paste off the car.

As the wife of a field director of the National Safety Council, Mrs. Hal Kent, of Des Moines, Iowa, naturally feels she's pretty sharp on safety. Try to sell that to her Siamese kitten, whose muffled meows from the automatic washer brought Mrs. Kent a-flying. Inside the washer was the kitten, suddenly and angrily completing a full cycle of the thorough and fluffy cleansing the manufacturer of the machine so proudly proclaims. Mrs. Kent had unwittingly damped her pet into the washer with a basket of laundry.

Well, that's what's been going on in offbeat circles in the last year. Sort of makes you feel that the oddest thing about life is that it's so odd, doesn't it?

Summit Talks Topic as Ike and Segni Confer

From the tomb of the unknown soldier in Piazza Venezia the president drove to the U.S. embassy to make his talk to employees.

Wants Just Peace

Standing in the gold and gilt office of U.S. Ambassador James D. Zellerbach, the president told his audience "I do know the United States is not always admired."

Then with a quiver of emotion he added that his aim is to assure people everywhere the United States goal is just peace for all.

"I am going to try to interpret America to other people a little bit more accurately than has been done," the president said.

"I get a very great lift when I have a chance to do this kind of thing myself."

"Since I have four grandchildren myself, I am much concerned that they should have a better life than I had."

Eisenhower promised to try to make sure that United States motives are not misunderstood. And he gave the impression that this was what his current historic - making tour is all about.

Would Help Others

The first two days of the president's tour have been demanding, but Eisenhower, although he seemed a bit tired at times, appeared to be taking it in stride.

The president indicated he would devote much of his talk with the Italian leaders on helping people of other lands raise their living standards.

This theme is close to the Italian heart. Premier Segni is particularly devoted to the idea of extensive aid to underdeveloped countries and is believed ready to commit more of Italy's resources to the purpose.

Beaming good-naturedly, Eisenhower last night may have seen more Romans at a gigantic reception in his honor at the 400-year-old Quirinal palace than he saw on the streets all day yesterday.

Some 3,000 of Rome's diplomats, politicians and socialites turned out for the event with their bejeweled ladies.

Communique Promised

A joint Italian-American communique was promised as a wrap-up tonight.

Authorities familiar with Eisenhower's views said the president's main aim is to assure Italian leaders the United States will not weaken or scuttle the painstakingly built Atlantic pact defenses for the sake of a deal with the Soviets.

Eisenhower's assurance on this point fitted into the "peace and friendship-with liberty" messages he has pledged to carry to all the countries he visits during his unprecedented 22,000 mile tour.

This slogan with its emphasis on liberty has been devised to make it clear to allies, as well as neutralists like India, that the United States has no intention of rushing into any deal with Moscow which might expose them later to possible Soviet domination, aggression or subversion.

Brewery Heir Up For Treatment

Waukesha, Wis.—The 27-year-old heir to a Milwaukee brewery fortune has been committed to the custody of the state department of public welfare for psychiatric treatment.

Municipal Judge George Johnson ordered the commitment Friday of Walter David Tallmadge of Oconomowoc after the latter was returned from Waupun where he had undergone study for 60 days.

Tallmadge has pleaded guilty to two morals offenses involving a 13-year-old girl.

The judge said that state prison psychiatrists found that Tallmadge was not sexually deviated but was in need of psychiatric help.

Jamming Brake Down Can Prove Hazardous In Winter Driving

One of the cardinal rules for safe winter driving is this—pump your brakes.

On snow and ice, a rapid up-and-down pumping action is far more to be preferred than jamming the brakes, declares the Wisconsin motor vehicle department.

Pumping the brakes helps maintain steering control while stopping on ice or snow. Even with the help provided by tire chains, which reduce stopping distances in half or more on snow or ice, expert winter drivers know that it's wise to start slowing down sooner than usual and it's important to operate at reduced speeds whenever pavements are slippery.

Dutch Background

Old St. Nicholas to Appear Tonight, Fulfilling Half of Santa Tradition

"Welcome, friend! St. Nicholas, welcome! Bring no rod for us tonight! While our voices bid thee welcome, Every heart with joy is light."

From an old Dutch carol

BY JACK HOLZHUETER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

One half of America's "split - personality" Santa Claus will make his appearance in many Fox Cities homes sometime tonight — the eve of the feast day of St. Nicholas.

Fox Cities residents of Dutch descent hark back to the Netherlands Saturday, as their children set out their shoes to be filled with gifts from the white-bearded saint.

St. Nicholas' horse is not forgotten either, for the children always fill their shoes with straw and hay for the beast that must make so many stops each Dec. 5.

St. Nicholas, patron saint of children, sailors and many European countries and cities, makes his second appearance as Santa Claus 20 days later, the eve of Dec. 25. This is the "Americanized" half of the venerable bishop of Myra; the other half still lives in the hearts of many Europeans and Americans of European descent.

Obscure Story

The story of St. Nicholas has become somewhat obscured since the early Christian days. We know very little of his actual background, but time has resulted in a web of tales surrounding the man who supposedly gave all he had to the poor.

What we do know is this. He was bishop of Myra in Asia Minor and he was cast into exile and prison during the persecution of Emperor Diocletian and released by Constantine the Great, a Christian ruler. He died in Myra about the year 350, and in 1087, his body was brought by Italian merchants from Myra to Bari, Italy, where his relics are preserved in the church of San Nicola.

By the year 1200, St. Nicholas had captured the imagination of the people as a saint who gave all he had to the poor.

To venerate their patron, European children, especially Hollanders, helped evolve the custom that lives today.

Heavenly Messenger

The children believe that on this night St. Nicholas visits them as a heavenly messenger, laden with gifts, admonishing the youngsters to remember the true significance of the birth of Christ.

From this legend has come the frequent protestations that St. Nicholas comes merely to warn children to be good until the birth day itself.

The saint usually is impersonated by a man wearing a long bishop's robe with mitre, crozier and jeweled gloves. He examines them on their catechism and hears their prayers, then showers them with sugary gifts.

When the jolly saint himself cannot make the journey, he is remembered all the same by the children, and their shoes are filled miraculously the night before his feast day.

Tradition Abolished

The feast was almost forgotten for a time after the reformation in the 16th century. In England, however, each church annually elected a boy bishop, whose authority lasted until Dec. 28, Holy Innocents' day. The boy and his colleagues took possession of the church and did everything except perform mass. This custom finally was abolished in Elizabethan days.

Other countries, too, gradually did away with the saint's legend, but Netherlands stubbornly stuck to tradition, partly because he was the patron of the country's many sailors. They called him Sinter Klaas, and brought him along when they came to New Amsterdam, now New York.

After Britain took over the colony, the English settlers and immigrants found the kindly figure of Sinter Klaas more appealing than their substitute for him, Father Christmas, especially since St. Nicholas was so closely associated with gift-bearing to children, a custom not practiced by the stuffy British harbinger of Christmas.

Santa's Name

During the 18th century, St. Nicholas gradually became the accepted gift-bringer for most children in New York, and the term Santa Claus became the Americanized version of Sinter Klaas.

Santa Claus did not appear as the saint nor as Father Christmas, but as a happy combination of the two, and his visit was transferred, for many people, from St. Nicholas' eve to Christmas eve.

Santa's north pole habitat and reindeer were usurped from the Scandinavian traditions, and Santa became much as he is today.

But in some parts of the United States, both traditions of St. Nicholas and of his stepson Santa Claus are observed. And tonight, many Fox Cities children will put out their shoes with full knowledge that their patron saint will not disappoint them.

Public Fooled With Payola, FTC Charges

Main Line Cleveland, which distributes RCA Victor recordings.

But Finan said these were consultant fees, not payola. There were these other developments on the payola front:

1. FTC Chairman Earl E. Kintner said in a speech at Louisville, Ky., that newspapers and magazines were next after investigators get through with radio and TV. He said his agency will use all its resources to wipe out "bait" advertising, where hucksters lure customers with a low-priced product, then try to switch them to a costlier model.

Quizzed About Shows

2. Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.), chairman of the house subcommittee which investigated the TV quiz show scandals, said in Philadelphia his committee will open new public hearings next month on various practices in radio and TV. He did not say what practices, but the committee has been looking into payola.

3. A parade of musical personalities appeared at the New York district attorney's office yesterday in connection with their appearances on shows of disc jockey Alan Freed.

Freed has denied taking payola for plugging records, but has admitted taking consultant fees. He has been thrown off his TV and radio shows.

The district attorney's visitors included singers Don Cherry, Eileen Rodgers, guitarist Les Paul and his wife, Mary Ford. Most of them said they knew nothing of payola.

Miss Rodgers said "I paid no money at all to Alan Freed. I was on his show many times. I got paid for my appearances. I never had to pay him. I never paid any kick-back to him."

Singer Bobby Darin declined to discuss the questioning by the D.A.

The National Association of Broadcasters, in announcing amendments to its industry code, said they were "strong new provisions to protect the public from rigged TV shows; deceptive advertising and so-called payola practices."

U.S. Creates Bad Picture, Teacher Says

Lawrence Students Hear Critique by Prof. John Pick

"A station wagon in every garage but no books in the living room suggests to Europeans that America has not yet attained the highest standard of living in the world," said Prof. John Pick of the Marquette university English literature department to Lawrence college students Thursday.

"Europeans, inheritors of a great culture, are distressed at the loss of their ability to control events. They are dependent economically, politically and militarily on a superior power which seems to them to be an inferior culture," Dr. Pick went on.

European resentment toward Americans stems from acquaintance with the provincial American tourist, from U.S. dollar diplomacy which has never been satisfactorily explained in idealistic terms to its recipients and from Americans' alleged devotion to technology instead of intellect.

'Export Ideals, Culture'

"What we really should export are our ideals and our culture," the chairman of the Marquette fine arts committee stated. Present U.S. representation in this area is jazz ("this confirms the European idea that we are barbarians"), skyscraper architecture ("this confirms our preoccupation with size, numbers and submersion of the individual"), Hollywood films ("these reflect a cultureless America, land of soft-headed high living") and American literature.

Of the latter, Dr. Pick asked, "How can we expect foreigners to know what the U.S. is really like when their knowledge of our culture is derived from 'Babbit,' 'Grapes of Wrath,' 'Sanctuary,' 'Tobacco Road' and 'The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit'?" They are full of depravity, lust, violence and degeneration. This is the way we picture ourselves," he said.

"American writers have lost touch with the reaffirmations in American life," Prof. Pick stated, admitting that the best-written books give the worst picture of American life, while conversely the worst-written books give the rosier impression.

Dr. Pick endorsed the CARE plan of sending culture packages of 89 paper back books to communities too small to contain a United States Information service library. These books come closer to a true reflection of our history and politics, our arts and sciences, he indicated.

Trade Schools Plan Course in Real Estate

A course in fundamentals of real estate practice and problems will be held at Appleton Vocational and Adult school beginning Feb. 18.

There will be eight 2-hour lectures. Instructor is Norbert J. Stefanlak, Milwaukee, a lecturer in real estate, accounting and statistics at the University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee.

Stefanlak is a chairman of the Milwaukee Board of Realtors' committee on research and education and currently is conducting a research study for Milwaukee on characteristics of location of industry.

The course includes lectures on the real estate business, appraisal methods, functions of the real estate executive, specialized real estate business activities, real estate brokerage, financing, promoting community land use objectives, and special problems of the real estate business.

There is an enrollment fee of $8, plus books. The fee is payable at time of enrollment at the vocational and adult school. Vocational schools of Appleton, Neenah, Menasha, Kaukauna and Kimberly are cooperating.

Farm Groups Not Required To Buy License

Madison — Farm and labor organizations are not required to buy restaurant permits to occasionally prepare and sell meals to the general public, Atty. Gen. John W. Reynolds said today.

Reynolds' opinion was issued at the request of the state board of health. The board said a question had arisen over the farmers' union and labor unions operating restaurant booths at county fairs and similar events.

Reynolds described the groups as fraternal organizations "within the meaning of that term used in the Wisconsin statute exempting certain organizations from restaurant permit requirements."

In another action, the attorney general said a circuit court suit has been brought against Franklin Stone Products Inc., of Milwaukee, charging the firm violated quarry safety orders of the industrial commission.

The suit claims the company did not provide guard rails on elevated platforms and manways, and failed to use delayed electric detonators on explosives. The suit asks a $600 penalty and an injunction against the firm.

Dietrich Painting In National Show

Thomas M. Dietrich, artist in residence at Lawrence college, has been notified his oil painting "Sunday Morning, Baileys Harbor" has been accepted for showing in the 155th annual exhibition of American Oil Painting and Sculpture.

This is a joint show sponsored by the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and the Detroit Institute of Arts, and will be shown at both galleries. The pictures now are in Detroit until Jan. 3, and will be seen in Philadelphia from Jan. 24 to Feb. 28.

The painting jury to select the show was made up of Henry Varnum Poor, chairman, William Kienbusch and Sigmund Menkes.

Touching Concern For Sick Mother

Louisville, Ky. — An attorney asked U. S. Commissioner Ray H. Kirchdorfer to reduce the bond for a woman being held on a stolen check charge.

"She has a terribly sick mother she must look after," the attorney said.

A check of police files showed the mother had been shot in the arm. Her daughter was awaiting a hearing on that charge, too.

Thomson's has a service truck and will pick up and deliver customer's cars. The service station is open to serve every day from 6 a.m. to midnight.

When Winter Winds Blow, a glassed in porch or breezeway will be a real addition to any home, according to Tom Temple of Tom Temple Window and Door Sales. Phone number is RE 3-5463.

A place for guests and family to stomp off snow, remove boots and outer wet garments may be the answer to your winter housing problems and the DeVac glass wall porch enclosure is the most economical way known to do this job. Storm windows are also available for these porches, according to Tom Temple, making porches enclosed with the units all-year-round rooms for the family's enjoyment. The sun will build up enough heat through the large panes of glass so that the rooms can be used many hours of the day, even without extra heating. The units consist of wood frame with full length screen or storm and top and bottom glass panels that adjust quickly and easily to any position. Temple added that a porch that is glassed in acts as a buffer for other rooms in the home and owners are pleased to find their livingrooms or kitchens are much warmer all winter. Many Fox Cities homes are already enjoying the convenience of the firm's De-Vac year-round porches with smaller investments than their owner ever dreamed possible, according to Tom Temple.

A New Type of Forage Harvester is in production at Fox River Tractor company, Appleton, and the picture above will be duplicated on many farms this coming summer. Offices of Fox River Tractor company are located at 1020 N. Rankin street.

A new type of forage harvester may soon become a common sight on many farms. It is a self-propelled unit that resembles a tractor running backward with a harvester built around it. This new field machine was designed at the Fox River Tractor company and has been undergoing field tests in several states for two years. With big drive wheels in front carrying the weight, it walks right over wet, soggy ground. The rear wheels have power steering. Harvesting attachments consist of a 2-row corn unit, a 7-foot mower bar, and a pickup unit. They can be interchanged in a few minutes. One of the main features is operator's comfort. He is seated above the crop for a clear view ahead. Lifting of units and steering is done by hydraulic power. As a result of demonstrations made last summer, the company has received more orders already than it had planned to build next year. Additional production will be scheduled when steel is available.

Electioneering in the Steel Strike

If negotiators for the steel industry and the United Steel Workers union have failed to reach an agreement on a new contract by Jan. 6, the National Labor Relations board will be required to hold an election for the workers on management's final offer for settlement of the dispute.

The history of steel strikes indicates that it is practically impossible for the industries to win such an election. Nevertheless, while negotiations are under way to bring about a settlement if possible, the several steel companies involved are preparing an "educational" campaign addressed to their workers based on the industry's 3-year labor contract proposal of Nov. 15. It is fully expected that this will be the final offer if no settlement has been reached.

The industry's Nov. 15 offer proposed wage and benefit improvements estimated by the companies to be worth 30 cents an hour over a 3-year period. There was a possible additional 8-cent cost of living raise and an offer to put off for a year a decision on company demands for work - rule changes. In the meantime these rules were to be studied by committees and possibly offered for eventual arbitration.

The union negotiators rejected the company's offer, calling it "the same old package" and declaring it would have the effect of eliminating jobs by reducing work crews and bringing about a "speed up" for the workers. The union spokesman declared that the proposal was actually worth only 24 cents an hour instead of the 30 cents claimed by the employers. The union is holding out for a contract similar to the one it secured from Kaiser Steel corporation which included a 22½-cent per hour increase over a 20-month period and refers the work rule issue to a committee that will make recommendations which will not be binding on either side.

While there is some hope that the negotiators may come up with a settlement, nevertheless the employing mills are going ahead apparently enthusiastic over the opportunity to explain the Nov. 15 offer to their employees. This is a rare opportunity for the companies to get their side of the story before their employees and nothing but good could come of that even though it may be impossible to swing the workers over since, in effect, they would then be voting against their leaders. The statements of the union workers as well as the past history of such elections indicate that even though the employees might personally favor such a settlement they will not vote to compel acceptance against the advice of their leaders. Even so, such information in the hands of the workers might have an important influence on the negotiators. If the workers find a way to let it be known that they are in favor of a settlement, there will be a settlement before the Jan. 6 deadline.

Change in Poland

Premier Gomulka has announced plans to tighten up communist control of Poland and the discipline among party members. It seems that the Red regime has failed in its efforts to compromise Marxism with some degree of personal liberty.

According to A. M. Rosenthal, New York Times correspondent recently expelled from Poland, the Red government in Poland has been considerably different from that of other satellite nations. Church attendance has not been frowned on, newspapers were relatively free, angry young men wrote scathing criticism of the government, farms remained independent.

But it just didn't work. The Poles could stay aloof from the government and they chose to be indifferent. Cheating the regime at every turn became an honorable sport. Lack of enthusiasm among party members themselves meant delaying actions and shrugs of the shoulders. Industry didn't develop, quotas weren't reached, crops failed.

Rosenthal says that Gomulka actually has been tightening up controls for several years but the people are just now beginning to feel the pinch. The newspapers were the first to be hit. Then authors were expelled or didn't dare go home again. Efforts are now under way to create an effective force among the party rulers.

But Gomulka knows the difficult position he is in. If he doesn't produce, the Soviet bosses will find somebody else to try. If he puts on too much pressure, the Poles may rebel and find Russian tanks sent over from Budapest. The Soviet Union showed in Hungary that it will use any means to keep from losing a satellite.

The events in Poland have given the lie to - communist theory that government would wither away and the people would have the utmost freedom. It is only by outlawing a free press, banning critical books, regulating in their entirety both industry and agriculture, and maintaining a rigid police control that communist regimes can produce profitable economies or even stay in power. It is doubtful whether a Red government can even permit much church attendance, important in Catholic Poland, without admitting a fatal flaw.

It appears that the Poles won't have it much happier or healthier in the near future. But they have proved that communism and any degree of individual liberty can't coexist under the same government.

Six-Hour Teachers for LaCrosse?

When teachers seek pay increases it is common enough for harried taxpayers to mention the teachers' short working hours, their long summer vacations, their short working week and their frequent holiday periods, much to the resentment of the teachers. When this happened in LaCrosse and was followed by council action cutting the city budget by $77,000 and thus eliminating all chance for teachers' pay increases, the teachers decided to accept the council at its word and work a 6-hour day.

To merely announce the actual working of a 6-hour day by public school teachers is not only to refute the short-hours argument but to put the whole matter on a more understandable basis. It is not necessary to give much thought to the matter to know that no teacher could do an adequate job if he or she gave no more time to the work than is actually spent in the classroom. It is quite obviously impossible for a teacher to walk into a class without previous preparation and do any sort of a job of teaching. Likewise, it is perfectly clear that no teacher's work is through when the class is dismissed. There is not only planning to be done for the next day but often there are papers to be read, corrected and graded and special attention given to some students. Even more obvious examples of outside work are to be found in the teacher's coaching of such extra curricular activities as sports, debate, forensics, drama, music and many other equally important but less popular activities.

But when one comes to assess the right or the wrong of the actions of the city council or those of the teachers in LaCrosse it is almost necessary to be a taxpayer and a parent with children of school age living in LaCrosse to make the correct decision. During the past year LaCrosse has suffered some serious industrial losses. There was a period of unemployment for a great many people and this had its impact upon business. Nevertheless, the present budget proposed for the city calls for an increase of $140 per thousand of assessed valuation. The council has been striving to keep the budget within bounds but the figure finally adopted was somewhat above that recommended by the mayor.

Although it has been claimed that surveys indicate the LaCrosse teachers are in the lower fifth of schools in their classification, this has been disputed by the LaCrosse mayor who claims that comparison has been made with schools in the Milwaukee area where there is "current prosperity compared with our austerity."

One councilman apparently spoke for the majority of his fellows when he said, "One of the most favorable things we could do for industry is to give them a favorable tax rate."

We think the chief value of the LaCrosse discussion is that it should put an end to the old saw about the short hours that teachers enjoy, but we feel sure that the teachers' proposal to work only six hours will have no success whatever. The superintendent of schools says he doubts that the proposal is legal. That may be true but it must be pretty obvious that it is wholly unworkable whether legal or not. A teacher hired to coach football or basketball or music or forensics who decides to merely teach his or her class for six hours a day is discarding his or her chief claim to promotion in the future, and he or she also may be losing any claim to a new contract next year.

What Others are Saying

Unemployment Not Healthy, No Matter Who Says It Is

From The Philadelphia Inquirer

The special senate committee studying the problem of unemployment got quite a jolt on the first day of hearings when a witness said, in effect, there is no problem.

Walter D. Fackler, spokesman for the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, sees some chronic unemployment as "normal" and a "positive economic good" for the country. It's healthy for the economy to have millions of Americans out of work, he says.

a complacent shrug of the shoulders.

It is true that an adequate labor supply is an essential ingredient of a healthy economy, but this does not mean it is desirable to have more job seekers than there are jobs available. There is nothing "positive" about unemployment. It is a negative factor that depresses the economy.

We don't know what dictionary Mr. Fackler reads, but his attempt to differentiate between unemployment and joblessness did more to confuse than to clarify the issue. Of course some people change jobs voluntarily and some are too lazy to work, but this doesn't diminish the seriousness of the unemployment problem.

Otto Tank Was Brought Up to Rule Norway

BY JACK RUDOLPH

Post-Crescent News Service

Green Bay used to do a lot of bragging about the fact that it once numbered among its prominent early characters a man who, if he was what many believed, should have been King of France.

But Fort Otto Tank Howard, in the days of its bitter municipal rivalry with Green Bay, liked to counter with a resident who, likewise, almost wore a crown.

Actually, Nils Otto Tank probably came closer to ascending a European throne than did Eleazar Williams.

Tank is only vaguely remembered today as one of the owners of historic Rol-Porlier-Tank cottage and as a Moravian missionary who attempted unsuccessfully to establish a religious-communal settlement in the Fox Valley over a century ago. Yet had the ambitions of his father been realized he would have become monarch of his native Norway.

Once Prime Minister

The elder Tank was in a position to swing it, too. A member of an old and powerful Norwegian family — his son was the last male of the line — he was prime minister of Norway and Denmark during the era of Napoleon. He was a leader in the deposition of his king and of the split between the two countries.

It is said that he had high hopes his son, a brilliant, well-educated and personable young courtier, would be chosen to rule an independent Norway. But the subsequent union with Sweden ruined the scheme and Napoleon's Marshal Bernadotte was elected king instead.

Otto Tank became a missionary and ultimately an American businessman.

Tank was born in almost regal luxury in 1800. Carefully trained for a high, if not the highest, position in Norway, he traveled extensively about the courts of Europe in his youth until he was painfully injured in an accident in the hills of Saxony.

He was nursed back to health in the home of a Moravian minister. During his convalescence he fell in love with the minister's daughter and married her.

Legend Not True

Legend had it that he renounced his regal aspirations for love and that his disgruntled father threw him out. A good story, but not true. By that time the plot to make him king, if it ever got far enough to be called a plot, had already collapsed.

At any rate, he studied for several years and became a Moravian minister. In the early 1830s he took his wife to the Dutch Guiana colony of Surinam to be a missionary among the Negro slaves.

He wasn't very successful although he tried hard. The planters were suspicious of his work and resented his aristocratic attitude. After his wife died of tropical fever he returned to Europe in 1847 with a 4-year-old daughter and settled briefly in Holland.

Here he renewed acquaintance with a friend of his court days. Caroline Van der Meulen was also the daughter of a clergyman but her mother had once been first lady-in-waiting to the Queen of Holland. They were married in 1849 and were planning to return to South America when Tank was invited to the United States to do missionary work in Wisconsin.

Arrive in Milwaukee

The Tanks arrived in Milwaukee the same year, bringing with them, so it was later rumored, a personal fortune of $1½ million in gold. The figure was undoubtedly exaggerated but they were well heeled.

Having conceived the idea of founding a communistic Moravian settlement in Wisconsin, Tank came to Green Bay in 1850 and purchased nearly 1,000 acres of excellent land along the west bank of the Fox River. He laid out a village and invited a struggling congregation of co-religionists to come and occupy it.

About 25 families accepted and the colony eventually grew to about 300 people.

For a time, with Tank the absolute boss and footing all the bills, everything went smoothly.

Eventually, however, he clashed with the group's regular pastor who had agitated the colonists to demand title to the lands Tank had allotted them. When Tank refused peremptorily the settlement blew up. Led by his pastor, the congregation departed for Door county where it founded the Village of Ephraim in 1853.

Called Tanktown

Tank had given that name to his projected Utopia but Green Bayites had promptly dubbed it Tanktown. Disgusted and disillusioned but too proud to return to Europe, he resigned his mission and elected to remain on his considerable American estate, which included the Rol-Porlier cottage.

He and his wife had enlarged it by the addition of two wings — one of which still remains — and furnished it with art treasures from Madame Tank's home in Holland. To recoup his losses from the ill-fated colony, Tank opened his village to the sale of lots and was very successful. The area eventually became the Eighth Ward of Green Bay.

Tank also became deeply involved in a number of business ventures, including the Fox-Wisconsin Improvement project in association with Morgan L. Martin, various railroad promotions and in lumbering and foundry operation. His machine shop, foundry and lumber mill in Fort Howard was the largest and most modern of its kind in the area prior to the Civil war.

Died in 1864

When he died unexpectedly in 1864, Tank was one of the wealthiest and most influential, if not very popular, men in the Green Bay area. For all his considerable business ability, few associates really like him. He was too austere — if not downright snooty — toward most of his neighbors.

Being of aristocratic backgrounds the Tanks evidently considered themselves socially a cut above the residents of Fort Howard, mixed very little and were held in considerable awe. This attitude, plus the fact that his widow later destroyed all his personal papers, makes it difficult to assess his true character and personality.

An impressive man, well over six feet tall, well proportioned and with a dignified carriage, Tank always attracted attention. Had he been more friendly he might have become an outstanding community leader.

Sincere but Aloof

He never could bring himself to unbend in the free and easy atmosphere of a frontier society. Consequently, few people had much confidence in him, although he was, by all accounts, a sincere, well meaning and rigidly honest man.

Mrs. Tank survived him and his daughter by many years. She had become a formidable personality in the community in her own right by the time she died in 1891.

At her death she left an estate well in excess of $100,000 and a houseful of antiques and art objects the likes of which Green Bay didn't realize were in the city. Their disposal at public auction in 1893 drew art connoisseurs from all over the United States and still causes those who remember it to become a little wide-eyed.

Under the Capitol Dome

Wyngaard Moralizes on 'Press' Releases

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — The recent unpleasantness about quiz shows on the electronic screen has provoked a good deal of moralizing and preaching that is as falsely pious as it is tedious.

Simultaneously it has inspired some introspection in many quarters that may in the long run be a wholesome thing for the community and it is in that spirit that your correspondent has been wondering lately about possibly misleading practices in his own beloved craft.

Suppose, for example, that a political reporter attached to a governmental affairs beat, such as mine, would be completely, literally, even painfully truthful about the origin of some of the dispatches he sends on to his editors and the patient readership for which they act as stewards?

A "lead" might go something like this:

"This reporter was sitting peacefully in the capitol coffee shop, reading the box scores, when a politician came up and pushed a statement into his lap that said . . .

Or it might recount the origin of a prominent political dispatch like this:

"Commissioner X today delivered to this office a three page, self-serving press release which claimed that . . .

HOW IT GOES

The laity that represents the consumption of the product of today's news media may not know about the complex machinery that has developed to exploit news space — or the overflowing abundance of volunteered "news" in each mail delivery to the reporter's desk and the editor's office. But if the realistic truth was told in this fashion:

"The Wisconsin Edible

Beet Top association, which recently contracted for a fancy fee with a publicity agency for the writing of such trash, today announced that . . .

There may survive among those who sit up for the old movies the idea that the newspaperman is a dashing, tireless fellow, always on the run, hat on the back of head, searching for the great scoop.

In actuality he spends most of his time fending off the space-seekers, the merchandisers of the prepared press release, the artists of the puff. The problem is one of selection from the ocean of gratuitous offers. A skeptical editor regarding this essay is invited to spend a day in this office, measuring the volume of time required merely to open the mail, without mentioning the time required to examine it and to toss it away.

There lingers the desire to write it as it happens typically, such as:

"Sen. Z barged into the press room this morning and distributed a mimeographed attack on Governor A that he had spent all night composing . . .

Or "Commissioner B gave his secretary two hours off this afternoon to circle the square to peddle a publicity puff intended to show that he is the hardest working fellow in the establishment . . .

Perhaps the traditional rules of the craft are too rigid and unreal for today's puritanical tastes. Maybe if a quiz show star must be condemned for playing games that never were credible the day's events should be recounted in more realistic narrative too, including an occasional report on the peremptory secretary of one of this state's leading public officials who has the habit of calling news offices late in the day with the breathless order:

"We have a press release. Pick it up right away." "What's it about?" "I don't know. I haven't read it. I only typed it."

Queen Victoria Sends Gift to U. S.

75 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Dec. 4, 1880.

The writing-table made from the old ship Resolute, which formed part of Franklin's expedition, has reached Washington as a present from Victoria to the United States. The table is magnificently carved and weighs 1,300 pounds.

There are whispers in the air, all from Republican lungs, that Secretary Thompson of the Navy Department, will retire with a smirched record. This will not surprise Democrats. He is the same chap who figured in the Indian ring long ago and who acquired wealth in the usual Republican style.

Of course, old Hayes will accept his resignation promptly the moment an attempt is made to impeach him; and of course, Garfield will exercise equal promptitude in awarding him an important appointment. Republican policy must be maintained.

William E. Schubert, general manager of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company, was to speak on "Development of the Fox River" at the meeting of the Appleton Lions club. # Buchanan Board OKs Record $80,968 Budget

Township Taxpayers Face Rate Increase
Of $3 Per $1,000 Evaluation, to $16

Buchanan—A record budget of $80,968 for 1960, compared to $78,382 in 1959, and calling for a tax levy of $41,140, compared to $29,162, has been approved by the town of Buchanan board.

Assessed valuation dropped, due to an annexation to Appleton, from $2,652,080 this year to $2,571,280 in 1960. Taxpayers will be assessed $16 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, up from this year's $13. The tax rate shows $13 for local purposes and state and county taxes, $3 for the town school.

Budget Breakdown

Most expenses for 1960 are the same as 1959, with high school, state and county requests accounting for $39,987 of the total, compared to $35,494 in 1959. Operation of Speel school will cost $7,714 next year, compared to $13,388 in 1959, since the school budget shows a surplus this year.

Items remaining the same in both budgets were Darboy street lights and fire house costs, $1,000; half the Steffen-son road maintenance, $400; for social security, $100; board of review, $100; road gravel and grading, $8,000; culverts, $400; fire trucks and retainer fees, $1,000; Wisconsin Towns' association, $35; annual reports and weed notices, $65; miscellaneous and dumping, $500; poor fund, $1,000; salaries and expenses, $3,500, and road binder, $1,200.

Elections will cost the township $400 in 1960, half of the $200 in 1959, and cost of snow removal and sanding was increased from $3,000 to $3,500. Insurance costs were raised from $700 to $800 in 1960. School transportation, a new experience, is expected to cost $2,380 in 1960.

Receipts Estimated

The 1959 budget listed a balance on hand of $15,500 compared to $4,000 anticipated this year. Income tax payments are estimated at $10,100 compared to $7,470 in 1959, while tavern license fees are up from $500 to $560 in 1960. Telephone tax receipts are estimated at $800, compared to $740 in 1959.

Transportation refund is expected to be $4,000 in 1960, compared to $3,200 in 1959, and supplemental road aid will be $5,060 in 1960, compared to $4,700 in 1959. Public utility receipts are set at $9,500 in 1960, compared to $8,800 in 1959. Auto tax receipts in 1960 are listed at $2,715, compared to $2,800 in 1959.

Liquor tax receipts are to increase from $1,750 in 1959 to $2,000 in 1960, while a junk dealer and beauty shop li-

Early Years: An imaginative use of furnishings lets the child's room reflect his personality. For would-be performers what could be more pleasant than waking up in a 3-ring circus. Note the abundance of storage space which can be later transformed into bookshelves.

Novel Rooms Reflect Child's Personality, Bring out Talent

How to furnish a home with children in mind is a problem every parent must face and the sooner the better. It's a good idea to begin feathering the nest before the tots are a-toddling. That way, all the furnishings will have been chosen for safety, durability and easy care before the children are able to put them to a real test.

Both adults and children can enjoy life in an atmosphere that gives the children plenty of room for freedom without keeping mother worn to a frazzle.

A few guideposts to follow:

1. Give children a room of their own. This will usually be the bedroom, but could be a basement or attic recreation room. Here the child can entertain his friends and have a place of privacy. This also helps him develop his sense of responsibility.

2. Include adequate work space. The room should contain a small, well-lighted table for writing and work projects and a bulletin board for art work. Avoid frilly decorations and take advantage of the washable fabrics and care-free furnishings now available.

3. Make it easy for the child to imitate grown-ups. Place hooks in his closet low enough to reach so he will learn to hang up his own clothes.

4. Use built-ins to utilize space effectively which can be adapted for use later. For example, the open shelves on which he stores his toys can be used later as bookshelves. A sound absorbent ceiling will keep the sounds of juvenile jollity from disturbing other areas of the house and add to both the parents and child's comfort.

5. Consider the safety of the child first and then the safety of the furnishings. Put away the fragile heirlooms and the top-heavy tables. Any electric wire is a temptation at teething time, so coil the excess and tape it to the bottom of the lamp or appliance.

6. Furnish the child's room for his own comfort — not just for appearance. Within reason, he can even take a part in the room's decoration. It's easy and rewarding to find accessories that fill the room with the child's own personality.

Unexpected Company Upsetting

BY EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I am the mother of two young children. Last week my mother-in-law walked in with her brother and his wife at 5:30 p. m., just as I was feeding the children their supper. She had given me no warning that they were coming and as a result I'm afraid we looked rather shabby. I had met my mother-in-law's brother and his wife only once before. This was their first visit to our house. While I was finishing feeding the children, my mother-in-law took them on a tour of our house, a privilege I thought was surely reserved for me. Later, when I told my mother-in-law she should have given me some warning so that I could have been prepared for guests, her reply was: "Since when do I have to call my children before visiting them?" I don't expect any such formality from my mother-in-law but as she had others with her I thought she could have called to see if it was all right to bring them over. Am I wrong in expecting good manners from relatives?

Answer: I agree with you that before bringing anyone, even her brother and sister-in-law to see the children and your house, she should have telephoned. On the other hand, she is the grandmother of your children, so don't be too hard on her and make her feel that she is not welcome.

With Its Built in Snack bar, this room is a playroom on rainy days and a family room anytime. The well-lighted work area lets the children develop their imaginative talents and also keeps things in one place, a great help in cleaning.

Later Years: With a few changes, the 3-ring circus becomes a haven for sportsmen without major structural alterations. It is important and economical to consider future needs in furnishing children's rooms.

Note the former toy shelves now being used as bookshelves.

Your Problems

Nurses Prefer to Die Single Rather Than Wed Complainers

BY ANN LANDERS
DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter is being written by a battery of boiling nurses in Rochester, Minn. We love your column, read it regularly and usually agree with your advice. But, Annie, we can't go along with your answer to the young girl Landers who was dating the chronic complainer—the guy who carried his thermometer in his pencil case and took his temperature several times a day. You told the girl to find another boy friend and suggested that he would make some nurse a good husband. Every one of us whose name appears at the bottom of this letter is single—and looking. But we would prefer to die single rather than marry a man who wants nursing care 24 hours a day. We see plenty of ailing ones during business hours. We don't want to wear the cap around the clock—Mayo's Maidens.
Dear Mayo Maidens: Thank you (as well as the nurses from Portland, Me., to Portland, Ore.) for your expressions of resentment. You've got something—and I apologize for suggesting such an outlandish thing. May you all marry robust, healthy males and live happily ever after.
DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a girl 16 and my whole life is ruined because of this one fellow I will call Ron. We've been going steady since last April. On June 12 he wrote in my annual "I will love you always." We exchanged rings, bracelets, sweat-shirts, and romantic records. Yesterday he told me he was too tied up and felt like he couldn't hardly breathe and that he wants to be free. I gave him the best year of my whole life and now he wants to break up. Ron is 17 and very good-looking. Do you think there is someone else and he's not telling me the truth?—Crushed

Dear Crushed: If there isn't "someone else" there ought to be. A boy 17 should not be seeing one girl exclusively. It's bad for him and no good for the girl. At 16, honey, "Too thick won't stick."
DEAR ANN: The other evening we attended a 25th anniversary party. Someone asked the hostess when she was going to open the gifts. She said "In a few minutes." Then several guests said "Oh no! It isn't proper. People don't open gifts at parties any more."
The hostess appeared embarrassed and she did not open the gifts. Was she right or wrong? Pittsburgher
Dear Pittsburgher: My personal opinion is that gifts should be opened privately. A gift is a token important to giver and receiver and should have little meaning to others.

When I was a child and attended birthday parties the birthday girls opened gifts before all the guests. It made me sad because some kids who couldn't afford much brought modest gifts. They squirmed with embarrassment when their package was opened. I always wished they'd omit showing gifts. To this day I feel the same way.
Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you read Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope. (Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Miss Woyak, a graduate of Menasha High school, will leave for Victorville, Calif., Saturday to join her fiancé who is stationed at George Air Force base. They will be married in Victorville.

Proceeds will be used to help redecorate a sunroom at the hospital.

State Jaycettes Tell Carol Award Winners

The Wisconsin Junior Chamber of Commerce auxiliary recently made a statewide search for five outstanding young women to become recipients of its third annual Carol award — citation for achievement and recognition for outstanding leadership.
The award was presented at a noon luncheon today at the Hotel Retlaw, Fond du Lac, headquarters for the Jaycee mid-year convention. Presentation was made by Mrs. Robert Knapp, state Carol award chairman, Appleton, to the following five outstanding young women: Mrs. Francis Campion, Janesville; Mrs. Donald B. Doud, Wauwatosa; Mrs. Elbert H. Neese, Jr., Beloit; Miss Nancy Galbraith, Racine; and Miss Harriet Hoppert, Sheboygan.
Wisconsin Resident
Recipients of the award must be between 21 and 36 and a resident of Wisconsin for at least two years. Whether she is handicapped, a mother, educator, youth counselor, welfare worker, business or professional woman, she must be successful in her role as well as outstanding in her contribution to the community.
Mrs. Francis Campion is the mother of five children, three of which are afflicted with cystic fibrosis, a hereditary disease often fatal before the victim reaches adolescence. She gives lectures and sells Christmas cards to promote research on the disease.

The Pan American group of the Oney Johnston-Edward Blessman American Legion Post 38 held a Christmas dinner meeting Friday at the home of Mrs. Emery Greunke, 703 N. Morrison street. Guatemalan food was served and members exchanged gifts and played cards.
On Jan. 8 the group will meet at the home of Mrs. Harvey Ganzer, 331 E. North street.

a correspondence course from the University of Wisconsin. She graduated from high school confined to an iron lung and now is studying for a college degree and writing musical scores for dance reviews. She wants to become a professional dancer.
Miss Harriet Hoppert is 34, 31 feet tall and a fourth grade teacher at Mapledale school. Activity in community organizations includes Girl Scouts, Sheboygan Business and Professional Women's club, Sheboygan County Education association, Southeastern Wisconsin Sunday School Teachers association, Wisconsin Education association, National Education association, National Parent and Teachers association, Wisconsin Rural Writers association and Wisconsin State Historical society.

Opening lead — D K
Let's go back to see what produced this outburst. West led the king of diamonds, and declarer ruffed in dummy.
At the second trick declarer led the eight of clubs from dummy. East played a low club as naturally as he could. South took a deep breath and played a low club from his hand.
West discarded a diamond, and East turned a pale shade of green. This is where he asked all of those bewildered questions.
There wasn't much to the rest of the hand. Victor Mitchell, who played the South cards, continued the trumps and easily picked up East's trumps without loss. Then he discarded two hearts on dummy's spades.
Psychology
Mitchell, one of the best psychologists in the game, saw nothing remarkable about the first trump trick. "You didn't twitch," he conceded to the downcast East player. "I just knew what was going on."
What was going on, and how did Mitchell know about it?
East and West were both aggressive bidders, as you can see from the way they sacrificed all the way to six diamonds with practically no high cards. Why had they failed to bid seven-diamonds as a sacrifice against the vulnerable grand slam?
The last player to speak was East. He passed seven clubs rather than sacrifice. He wouldn't pass unless he thought he could beat the grand slam.
Having come to this conclusion, Mitchell thought back to an earlier round of bidding. When North bid six clubs, East did not sacrifice; he just passed. West was doing all the sacrificing at the slam level. Clearly, East thought he had defense against a slam; and West thought that there was no defense.
Obviously, isn't it? But how many players would have the nerve to back their judgment with that deep trump finesse at the second trick!

Family Diary Sally Cures Malady With Simple Remedy

By Jeannette Griffith

Though John is a man of many sterling qualities, though he is patient, kind, cheerful, industrious and true — when he has a cold he becomes brooding, morose and fretful and I'd sell him for a nickel.
So, a little over a week ago when John awoke with a hacking cough and in a piteous whisper asked me to tell his secretary that he wouldn't be down, I knew I was in for a bad time. And I was. A worse one than usual.
The next day Libby and Tommy came down simultaneously with stomach flu. Two days later Tommy went back to school and Sally came home with a sore throat and running a temperature. On Friday John announced that he was 'better,' but not well, and Bruce reported that he didn't feel so hot and went to bed without dinner.
The week end was a nightmare of head-holding, ice collars, cold drinks, hot drinks, shaking down thermometers and running with meals on trays. But apparently my tender ministrations paid off, for by last Monday everyone except Sally, who still looked a little peaked, seemed miraculously recovered and gaily prepared to depart for school and office.
I watched them go with ill-concealed pleasure, and when the front door slammed for the last time I headed for the bedroom, there to fulfill a resolve that I had made on one of my midnight sorties to the kitchen to fill the ice collar. As soon as the last man jack of my family was well I was going to be sick myself!
Work Can Wait
The week's laundry could wait. The remains of the previous week's ironing could stay another few days. The refrigerator which needed defrosting so badly it looked like a remnant from the ice age, could keep its ice. I was not only going to spend the day in bed, but I planned to be there when my family came home that night.
"Mama's sick," I explained to Sally as I crawled back into my unmade bed. Though it wasn't a complete truth — I did have a rough feeling in my throat and my bones did rather ache — the words weren't out of my mouth before I realized that I had made a grave tactical error.
"I'll go get my doctor set," Sally said.
"Mama's not that sick!" I mustered a healthy laugh. "I just want to lie here quietly and read the morning paper and look at my new magazine."
"You look sick to me," Sally said critically. "And I think you'd better rest." She removed the paper and my magazine, pulled down the blinds, hissed "Sleep" in a voice that was a rather startling imitation of my own and disappeared.
This turn of events was not exactly to my pleasure, that's exactly what that kiss darkened room my eyelids closed. But just for a second. The overhead light was turned on and Sally appeared with a sodden washcloth which she slapped on my forehead. "Don't move," she ordered. "That's for your fever. And I'll be back in a minute with your lunch."
Fixes Lunch
"Lunch!" I repeated feebly, sipping at the little rivulets of water trickling down my face. "You fixed Mama lunch?"
"Yes, I did!" Sally cried. "I made you a sandwich and because there isn't any butter I made it with some white stuff spelled L-A-R-D and after you have your lunch I'm going to fix you an ice collar and a cold drink and read to you. Then I'm going to get a pan of water and wash you all over the way you do me when I'm sick."
I was in a tight spot and only inspiration saved me. "You sweet, blessed baby," I said, gathering her close. "Why don't you just give Mama a kiss and make me well?"
Fortunately Sally, at 7, is too young to be skeptical. For not exactly to my pleasure, that's exactly what that kiss darkened room my eyelids

Two Hurt as Car Rams Into Diesel Engine

Couple's 3-Year-Old Daughter Escapes Injury in Collision

A couple and their 3-year-old daughter escaped serious injury shortly before 7 p.m. Friday when their car crashed into a Chicago and North Western diesel switching engine at Spencer road, just west of the Appleton city limits.

Taken to St. Elizabeth hospital by Larry's ambulance were Gerald Maertz, 32, of 818 Ridge lane, Geraldine, his wife, and their daughter, Susan. Mrs. Maertz received a severe face cut, concussion and possible chest injuries. Maertz received a broken finger, hand and nose injuries. Susan was uninjured.

Engineer Henry Giesregen, Ashland, said the switching unit was traveling about three miles an hour and the bell and horn were sounded as the car approached. The engine was backing and the car hit it on the front corner, then was smashed against the side as the switching unit stopped within 12 feet of the impact, County Patrolman William Janssen said.

Four Hurt

Miss Danielson and her passenger, Paul Weyers, 21, route 3, Kaukauna, received cuts and bruises. Mrs. Plamann was uninjured and her passengers, Jack Plamann, 14, and Michael Plamann 11, received bruises. All were taken to St. Elizabeth hospital by Larry's ambulance.

Miss Danielson was given a traffic summons for failing to yield the right-of-way. Police were told that her southbound car failed to stop for the stop sign.

First Typhoid Case Since '56 Reported

Traveling Salesman In Isolation at Appleton Memorial

An elderly Appleton traveling salesman is in isolation at Appleton Memorial hospital with typhoid fever, the first reported case in the city since 1956.

Onset of the contagious infectious disease was Nov. 15. It was confirmed by tests last week, and reported to the city health department Tuesday.

The more than 100 employees of Appleton Memorial have been immunized against the disease, completing all precautions to prevent further spread of the disease, Dr. Marvin S. Kagen, city health commissioner, said.

City Nurse Mrs. Mildred Jensen, after talking with the man, has begun efforts to retrace his steps before Nov. 15 in an attempt to find the source.

An expert from the state laboratory of hygiene will join her search next week.

The hunt will not be easy, Dr. Kagen said, because the man traveled extensively in the state. The doctor says the transmission of the bacteria probably came outside of Appleton.

The typhoid fever bacillus is produced in the human body and transmitted by hand from the feces to be introduced into the system of another person through food or drink.

Disease Symptoms

Typhoid fever is marked by inflammation of intestines, enlargement of the spleen and some glands, a peculiar eruption on stomach and chest about a week after infection, gradual rising fever, and prostration or stupor. The infected person will be nauseous and lose appetite.

The disease at one time was often fatal in sweeping through populations. Nowdays treatment with antibiotics has reduced the typhoid death rate to less than 10 percent, Dr. Kagen said.

Incidence of typhoid in Appleton has been almost negli-

Suggests Early Mailing of All Christmas Parcels

To insure delivery before Christmas, out of town parcels should be mailed before Thursday, Dec. 10, Appleton Postmaster Francis Sumnicht, said today. Local parcels and cards should be mailed by Dec. 15.

Sumnicht said nine extra trucks, furnished by the national guard, and extra men have been put on. Applications for post office jobs already have exceeded the number of jobs available, he added.

The post office has also rented the third floor of the Fox River Paper Corporation building on the east side of Oneida street as a parcel handling base.

Tie Parcels

Sumnicht said addresses on all mail must be clear, correct and complete to insure proper delivery. Tape on parcels is no substitute for twin, he emphasized, and packages should be taped and tied for adequate protection.

Sturdy corrugated cardboard should be used for parcels, and the complete address of the sender and receiver should be put on one side of the box. A duplicate should be put inside the box in case the outside label is destroyed or defaced.

Food and fragile articles should be sent special handling, Sumnicht said.

2 Proposed for Board Of New Corporation

Arthur J. Coffey, 2302 N. Drew street, and Gerald A. Bartell, Madison, one-time owner of radio station WAPL, have been proposed as members of the board of directors of a new stock insurance corporation organized last month in Madison.

The Capitol Indemnity corporation initially will write fidelity and surety business and plans to expand into fire and casualty insurance. It is the first fidelity and casualty stock company to be organized in the state since 1926.

gible in the last 12 years, according to health department records.

There also were three cases in 1952 and one in 1951.

Operation on Youth's Heart Successful

Waupaca — Two-year-old Billy Anderson who underwent a serious heart operation is recovering successfully at Madison University hospital.

Billy was operated on Nov. 24 to close a hole between the lower chambers of his heart. His operation was a reality because 36 persons volunteered special type O-negative blood to be used in the operation.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Anderson, rural Ogdensburg, was unable to walk, talk, and showed little growth for his age. The operation was done to correct the condition and enable the youth to lead a normal life.

Volunteers to give blood for Billy came from as far as the Fox Cities to donate at a special Red Cross center.

Deputy Sheriffs To Elect Officers

Officers will be elected when the Outagamie County Deputy Sheriffs' association meets at 8 p.m. Monday at the courthouse annex. Frank Post, now serving as president, will not seek reelection. Other positions to be filled are vice president, secretary-treasurer and one member of the board of directors. Refreshments will be served after the business meeting.

Rural Bear Creek Man Files Suit for Deer Gun Injury

Milwaukee — A suit was filed in circuit court here Wednesday by John C. Fenske of route 1, Bear Creek for $50,000 damages against a Milwaukee man who, Fenske claims, shot him during the 1958 deer season.

Fenske alleged he was shot in Price county by R. Kempen, a Milwaukee bricklayer. He says he has been completely disabled since the shooting on Nov. 17, 1958.

Fenske was hit in the abdomen and the shot emerged through the lower left hip.

Los Angeles — The miracle Packers will try to perform a bigger miracle in pro football's largest hornet's nest Sunday afternoon. Green Bay's 5-5 mark is the miracle—a 6-5 reading would be more so. The Packers will have to whip the star-studded Rams in the giant Coliseum to go over .500 and set themselves up for the grand finale in San Francisco a week hence. The Packers could get stung real bad Sunday. The Rams are expected to have themselves mad as hornets in view of (1) a 6-game losing streak (2) premature firing (in the press) of Coach Sid Gillman and (3) undue criticism of some of the club's top stars.

Fullmer Keeps Crown by Beating Webb

Scores Unanimous Decision in Gruelling 15 Rounds

BY JACK STEVENSON
Logan, Utah — Power punching Gene Fullmer, reigning solidly as king of the NBA middleweight class, contemplates stepping up a rung to challenge venerable light-heavyweight champ Archie Moore. Or possibly he might clear the 160-pound picture by fighting "Sugar" Ray Robinson again if Robinson has any desire for such a bout. Fullmer took solid possession of the NBA diadem and won the right to do some bargaining for future fights by scoring a unanimous decision over "Spider" Webb in 15 gruelling rounds at the Utah state university fieldhouse Friday night. This time non-collegian Fullmer—from West Jordan.

Manager Marv Jensen rests his head on his hand and strokes the hair of Gene Fullmer in the dressing room after Fullmer retained his NBA middleweight title in a unanimous decision over "Spider" Webb Friday night.

Vikes Fade, Losing Streak Continues

Knocke Wires 23 Tallies, Gray 20 in 75-71 Loss to Grinnell

Grinnell, Iowa—Bob Musser, a 6-foot-4 sophomore, scored 28 points Friday night to pace Grinnell college to a 75-71 win over Lawrence in the Midwest conference season opener for both teams. The Vikes who led, 36-32, at halftime and 55-50 with less than 10 minutes to play, ran out of steam in the final portion of the game. Musser, who hit 10 of his 13 shots from the floor in the second half, led the Pioneers' stretch run. Lawrence, whose 5-season road losing streak has now reached 44 straight games, moves over to Cedar Rapids tonight to play Coe. The Hawks blasted Ripon, 88-65, Friday night. "Chuck" Knocke was the top Vike scorer, sinking nine of 18 field shots and five out of seven free throws for 23 points. Sophomore George Gray bounced back from his 1-basket performance against non-conference Chicago last Tuesday to count 20 points. He made nine of 25 floor shots and two out of the two free throws. Grinnell shot at a 50 per cent field goal pace in the second half and 40 per cent for the game. The Vikes fired at a 36 per cent floor clip. The rebounding of Jim Simmons, who formerly played for Lawrence Coach Don Boyas, was almost as disastrous as Musser's shooting. Simmons was credited, unofficially, with 25 rebounds. Zachowski, Weyenberg Shine 4th Quarter Edge Helps Ghosts Cement 55-46 Win Over Bulldogs

BY DICK McDANIEL
Post-Crescent Staff Writer
New London — The Kaukauna High Ghosts scored 17 points in the final quarter to down the New London Bulldogs, 55 to 46, here Friday night in the opening round of Mid-Eastern conference basketball play. It was fourth consecutive win of the season as the Ghosts had three non-conference victories. New London has one non-conference win over Seymour. Kaukauna started building on a 38-34 lead at the end of the third quarter after most of the game was kept within one or two points difference in the score. The Ghost offensive in the fourth quarter was paced by Zachowski and Weyenberg. Zachowski, who scored 10 of his 14 points in the final stanza on three baskets and four points from the gift line. Early in the quarter, a long jump shot by Center Tom Laux put the Bulldogs within two points of a tie as the visitors led, 40-42. Kaukauna, after a basket by Zachowski, retained possession of the ball for almost a minute to help up the clock. The visitors scored six points before the Bulldogs added a pair of free throws by Dick Emerich, to give Kaukauna a 52 to 44 lead. With 22 seconds remaining, Kaukauna added three points on a free throw and field goal by Bruce Vanevenhoven. Laux Scores Tom Laux connected with a basket as the final horn sounded to give him 15 points for the evening. Action during the first two quarters was at a hot pace as the lead exchanged hands 12 times with both teams playing strong defensive ball. The first quarter ended in a 10-all tie and Kaukauna held a 24 to 23 edge at the half. One of the drags for the Bulldogs was the fact that New London lost possession. Turn to Page 14, Col. 3

Appleton High's basketball Terrors went 12 minutes without scoring a basket in their contest with Green Bay West Friday night in the AHS gym. Yet the Terrors won the game in a relative breeze, 58-45.

Abel impossible you are reckoning without six foot, five inch Ron Abel. The talented Abel, who missed all of last season with a knee injury, matched AHS' futility streak with a skein of his own Friday. He poured home 19 points in an 8-minute stretch in the third and fourth quarters. Ron finished with 29 points, the best individual Terror effort of the season. A crowd of about 1,700 fans witnessed the peculiar Fox River Valley conference opener.

Couldn't Hit Appleton's Dave LaViolette dropped home a fast - break basket with about 3:30 to go in the first stanza. From that point until Abel hit from close range with 19 seconds left in the first half, Appleton could not buy a basket. A nearly similar sort of futility by the visitors, and Terror free throws, kept the winners in the game and Appleton trailed just 18-17 at the intermission. The game stayed close during the first four minutes of Turn to Page 14, Col. 4

Whitewater came from behind in the last half to take a non-conference game from Elmhurst. Jim Fisher led the winners with 21 points. High scoring Ron Dibelius of Oshkosh got 35 points but he didn't get much help from his teammates in the non-conference game with Mankato State.

Giants 5-Point Favorites Over Browns Sunday

New York Win Would Clinch Eastern Title

By The Associated Press
Sam Huff came into the National Football league in 1958, one year before Jimmy Brown. Sam's been waiting for the big Cleveland fullback ever since. Linebacker Huff will be at Yankee stadium Sunday, watching and waiting for Brown to come storming into the New York Giants' line. And on this personal test between the league's leading ground gainer and its most respected middle linebacker rides the championship of the Eastern Conference. The Giants are 5-point favorites to defeat the Browns and gain the NFL championship round Dec. 27 against the Western winner. The defending league champs, the Baltimore Colts, were at San Francisco today in a showdown for first in the Western conference. The Colts and 49ers both had 7-3 records with two games to play. Play Steelers The Chicago Bears (6-4) can attain the season's longest winning streak by whipping visiting Pittsburgh (5-4-1) Sunday. quarter barrage with 15 of the Papermaker's 23 points.

Heard bottled up Trucker star Leon Westphal in the first half, allowing him only a spir of baskets and two free throws. In the meantime, Westphal picked up three personal and had to sit out most of the second and third periods.

With Westphal closely guarded, it was only through the long shot efforts of Mike Zingler that the Truckers stayed in the game in the first two stanzas. Zingler pumped in seven field goals, six on long jumps from way outside.

The Papermaker defensive accent was put on Zingler in the second half and he was held to one bucket and four tosses to end with a total of 20, high for the losers.

It was give and take through the first period as the score was tied five times. It was not until only two minutes were left in the half when the Papermakers put on a spurt that gave them a lead. With the score, 23-27, Jansen and Dick Bonzelet scored and Heard added two free throws to make it 35-27.

Two Fielders

Clintonville had only two field goals in the third period. Westphal scored early in the frame and again with a minute left. In between were eight free throws and the Truckers fell behind.

With Kimberly reserves being shuffled in and out in the last quarter, Clintonville picked up 18 points, top for any one quarter by the Truckers, but Kimberly maintained its margin by posting 20.

How Washington Got His Artillery

BY CLAY PERRY
By the time Washington took command of the American Army at Cambridge in July, 1775, his troops had dug fortifications on the hills ringing Boston. The British, who had occupied the city for over a year, were pinned down but could not be starved out as long as their navy kept the port open. The Americans lacked siege guns and trained storm troops. On the other hand, Gen. Gage, the British commander, had been made cautious by the mauling his infantry had received on the Concord expedition and at Bunker Hill. The military situation had reached a frustrating stalemate. In keeping secret his shortage of arms and powder, Washington had divested himself of any ostensible reason, in the eyes of his men and the Continental Congress, for not taking Boston. His troops, after all, outnumbered the British better than two to one. The inactivity was fomenting low morale and wholesale desertions.

Where to Get Them?
Where were enough artillery pieces to be obtained? Washington's answer came from one of the few men he had come to like, trust and respect since the general's arrival in Cambridge: Henry Knox, a civilian volunteer, a book-

Knox was a huge man, and his large frame supported his 250 pounds strikingly. He had charm, poise and a forceful personality. By romantic standards, it was quite understandable that Lucy Flucker, daughter of the royal secretary of the province, should not only fall in love with Knox, but, having married him, should willingly adjust her politics to fit his when her loyalist family was forced to flee Boston with Gen. Howe. Gen. Gage took over the military occupation of Boston in 1774, the year Henry was married to Lucy. Knox, along with Paul Revere and other local tradesmen, belonged to the intelligence committee which watched and listened and kept such colony spokesmen as John Hancock and Sam Adams informed as to British movements and intentions. Knox was known to the British as a colonial sympathizer and hence was forbidden to leave Boston. He and his wife, therefore, left the city secretly the day after the battle of Concord.

Books to Bullets
Knox volunteered as an artillery expert without rank. He was assigned to supervising the construction of fortifications then being dug above Boston. Washington, impressed by Knox's perpetual optimism in the face of a gloomy predicament and by the large man's resourcefulness in ideas, made him artillery commander. Nor did Knox let the general down. One day he suggested that the cannon captured at Fort Ticonderoga the previous May might be sledged and floated the 300 miles to Cambridge that winter and be available for use against the British the next year, 1776. Washington at once endorsed the proposal, adding that "no trouble or expense must be spared to obtain them." Knox, then 25 years old, pound guns, as well as six mortars, three howitzers, 30,000 flints, and tons of muskets and cannon balls. A rare prize, indeed, if the ponderous equipment could be dragged over the Berkshires and across the length of Massachusetts before a spring thaw sabotaged the effort.

Dismantles Cannon

Knox at once dismantled nearly 60 cannon and lowered them from their lofty wall emplacements to the ground, where they were carted across a swampy, wooded peninsula by the colonist garrison and loaded into three boats: a scow, a bateau and what Knox in his diary called a pettianger. Leaving William in charge of the heavily-laden craft, Henry hurried ahead in a lighter, faster bateau, in order to get together all the oxen, horses and sleds necessary for the next part of the trip back to Boston.

Navigating 33-mile Lake George with this priceless cargo was a breath-taking enterprise. The lake, which at its widest, is only three miles across, was forming ice on either side a mile from shore. A favorable wind died almost immediately. The scow ran on a sunken rock and William managed to free it only to have the unmanageable craft go aground in earnest at Sabbath Day Point, not halfway down the lake. This time the guns had to be unloaded from the scow and some added to the other boats, already low in the water. Eventually the guns arrived at Fort George without a loss.

Henry and his crew had been fed and warmed their first night on the lake by friendly Indians at Sabbath Day Point, but the next day they ran into a headwind which forced them to row desperately for ten hours to make Fort George.

Big Move by Sled

Hurrying on alone by land in the attempt to beat the arrival of heavy snow or to take advantage of any normal snowfall, Knox arrived

The First Formal Inauguration of a president of a Wisconsin State College was held Friday when Dr. Roger Guiles was seated as president of Oshkosh State college in academic ceremonies. Above Agnes Van Buren, an OSC student from Brandon, one of the parade Marshals, is followed by George E. Watson, state superintendent of schools, and William D. McIntyre, president of the state college board of regents. Additional pictures are on page B-3.

Guiles' Inauguration First in Wisconsin State College System

Oshkosh — In the first ceremony of its kind in the history of the Wisconsin state college system, Dr. Roger E. Guiles Friday was inaugurated as sixth president of Oshkosh State college. The ceremony lasted 2 1/2 hours.

The faculty, whom Gov. Gaylord P. Nelson addressed as "fellow intellectuals" formed a colorful procession into the auditorium of the Rose Swart Training school at 1:30 p.m. The solemnity of academic caps and gowns was brightened by colored hoods.

George E. Watson, state superintendent of schools, led the procession, followed by William D. McIntyre, president of the state college board of regents; Dr. Guiles; Prof. Nevin S. James, who presided over the inauguration program; Gov. Nelson; Eugene R. McPhee, director of Wisconsin State colleges; and the Rev. Roy Deming pastor of the Algoma Boulevard Methodist church, Oshkosh, who gave the invocation and benediction.

Gov. Nelson told the faculty students and guests assembled that "no profession or enterprise was half so important as educating our youth, who will assume leadership and determine the direction of our country."

"Reluctant to Spend"

"We have lost some of our sense of values of education and are reluctant to spend money on education. But the

Hog Marketing Program Held

Winnebago County Group at Session At New London

Oshkosh — An area hog production and marketing workshop for market hog farmers, agricultural instructors and agricultural agents was held Wednesday at New London. The program was conducted by marketing specialists from the University of Wisconsin and the program was centered at Quality Packinghouse of New London.

The primary object of the meeting was to demonstrate the importance of meat-type hogs for maximum market price.

Attending from Winnebago county as representative market hog raisers were Roger Radloff, Oshkosh; Richard Gruetzmacher, Omro; Earl Maxwell, Neenah; Carlton Haase, Menasha; Eugene Anderson, Clayton; Phil Neuschaefer, Wolf River; and County Agent Vernon W. Peroutky.

A total of 50 from the northeast Wisconsin area attended.

Grading Demonstration

The group observed a live hog grading demonstration and then each practice graded eight hogs for price including estimates on weight and backfat live hogs. Later that day the group observed the dressed carcasses where actual backfat and weight were measured to compare with earlier estimates.

Live hogs, 180 to 200 pounds liveweight, and with not over 1.6 inches of backfat and carcasses from 160 to 164 pounds, bring a premium price on most markets. Hogs with 1.9 inches of backfat normally bring a lower grade and a corresponding lower market.

Ask LaCrosse Police To Question Menasha Man on Narcotics

Oshkosh — LaCrosse police have been requested to question Jerome F. Smith, 23-year-old ex-convict from Menasha, about use of narcotics by Charles Lowry, Winnebago county sheriff. The FBI also has been notified.

Smith is being held at LaCrosse after staging a $133 holdup of a downtown loan company. He was arrested at the LaCrosse YMCA two hours later and admitted the holdup. He was arrested by two detectives making a routine check of hotels who found a $40 money order in his room which had been taken in the holdup.

Smith's step-mother told Winnebago county authorities Smith had acted "queer" last Saturday—as though intoxicated although there was no liquor odor. She said he departed he had obtained some dope at a bar outside of Neenah.

Campus enlargement was accomplished by John A. H. Keith from 1907 to 1917, despite a fire that destroyed the main hall. Harry A. Brown, president from 1917 until 1930, radically reorganized the academic staff, creating department heads and faculty committees to enable the president to devote time to policy. He also reorganized the curriculum and made the training school the hub of the normal school.

Expansion of the physical campus, by the addition of dormitory space, a new gymnasium and a student center.

Town of Menasha Sets Tax Rates For School Needs

Maplewood Area Up $1.31; Spring Road Cut 46 Cents

Menasha — Tax rates for the two school districts for the town of Menasha were announced today by Town Clerk Earl J. Hesselman, a 46 cent cut for Spring Road school district but a $1.31 increase for the former Maplewood district. However, town residents again will pay no local, county or state government taxes.

Maplewood district, which is the eastern half of the township and is attached to the city of Menasha school system, will pay $17.60 per $1,000 of assessed valuation. The tax this year was $16.29.

Its tax rate is based on a levy of $151,934 for the joint school district's operations and $3,500 for the town's share of school purchases. The east side of the township has an assessed value of $8,931,470.

In addition to that rate those living in the Sanitary District No. 2, the Lynch plat, will pay $5 per $1,000 of valuation in special assessment for the sewage district. Those whose properties about the Brighton Beach private road will pay $1 per $1,000 valuation for road costs.

Its combined rate will be $19.69, as compared with $20.15 for this year.

These rates will raise $94,924 for the school district and $83,488 for the high school tuition and transportation and other school costs.

The west side district has an assessed valuation of $9,064,230.

As in the past the town treasury will pay for the $143,483 in state and county taxes and for the town's own expenses and the operation of its fire departments. This will come from money now on hand or anticipated during 1960, Hesselman said.

Menasha Trails by Seven at Half; Gets 3rd Period Tie; Halts Rocket Win String at 3

BY GEORGE MANCOSKY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Menasha — Traditionally, Neenah and Menasha usually come up with at least one "scorcher" per year in their long-time intercity basketball series.

The faithful didn't have to wait long for this season's epic for it was unveiled here Friday night when the underdog, Jays, after an uneven first two quarters, caught the Rockets in a poor second half to win 67-61 in the Mid-Eastern conference opener for both clubs.

Scores in this series, which goes almost as far back as the time when basketball was invented, have ranged from 3-2 to 82-78. There have been double and triple overtimes but Friday's test can take its place with the best of them.

NHS Leads at Half

Neenah scored 39 points in the first half to Menasha's 32. The Jays canned 35 in the final two periods to the rockets' 22. And therein lies the tale. The clubs started the fourth quarter as they did the first-all even.

Neenah's 39-32 halftime lead was erased when the Jays posted a 14-7 third quarter bulge, creating a 46-all deadlock.

From the way things were going in the first half, it appeared that the unbeaten Rockets would have things pretty much their own way.

They led 20-13 at the quarter and enjoyed margins of from four to nine points in the second frame with a seemingly safe 7-point halftime edge. They had capitalized on Menasha mistakes and the spread might have been wider had they connected on a few more of the numerous tips they attempted.

Bluejays Spurt

Whatever Coach Lucian Gajewski told his Bluejays between halves was the right thing for they scored the first eight points of the third period to take a 40-39 lead. Neenah missed its first 10 field goal attempts although it got on the board with a free throw in between shots. The hosts gained control of the boards and came up with several intercepted passes.

The score was knotted three times in the quarter and, after the Jays caught up, the spread never varied from two points the rest of the period when the clubs closed all even at 46 apiece.

The Rockets scored the first five points of the third quarter and wound up with 18. They limited the hosts to five free throws for a 32-22 lead.

John Christianson led the winners with 17 points. Winn Zimmerman hit 11 and Doug Ankerson had 10. George Arno and Tom Steinmetz each made 10 for the losers.

The win was the third straight for Coach Don Bartlett's Rockets against one loss. Menasha has a 2-2 record.

kets in the first period and all but four of his points in the first half. Jack Ankerson and sophomore Burton, who showed a lot of poise in his first conference start, each had 14. Tom Smith and Felton scored six apiece.

Two Foul Out

Bill Gerhard saw some first half action for the Jays and Pete LaValle subbed for Ristau for a few minutes in the third period when the latter picked up his fourth foul. Hyde, Felton and Sauby saw action in a reserve capacity for Neenah.

Ankerson fouled out with 42 seconds left to play and Wilston gained his fifth foul with 26 seconds remaining. Four of the Jay starters had four violations but all finished the game.

Unofficially, Menasha hit 28 percent of its shots on 24 for 67. Neenah had about 26 percent on 22 for 83. Many chances for both teams were tip-in attempts.

Foreign Student To be Honored at January Reception

Neenah — A January tea in Wisconsin. This fall, to facilitate better contact and help for chapters, the state was divided into areas. Neenah, Appleton, Oshosh and Fond du Lac make up one area.

Regional Conference
Attending a regional conference for foster parents, chapter members and others interested in the student exchange program were Mrs. Hefti, Mr. and Mrs. John Huppler, foster parents for Larissa, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Severson and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Bayley, parents of Neenah High school students applying for the Americans abroad program, sponsored by American Field Service.

Because Neenah High school has a foreign student in attendance this year, juniors at the school were eligible to apply for Americans abroad program. Participating schools may expect to have one student and possibly more chosen to take part in the exchange program. American students go to foreign countries either for a 2-month summer program or for a 6-month school program. In either case they live with a family in the foreign country.

Last summer, 960 students from this country went to 24 different countries for the 2-month program with the largest number, 289 going to Germany. For the current school program there are 149 students in 12 different countries.

1,525 Students
This year Larissa is one of 1,525 students from 47 countries spending a year in the United States. She is one of 11 students from her country. Since the exchange program began in 1947, Wisconsin has had 483 young people live in communities and attend high schools in the state. A total of 344 boys and girls from Wisconsin have gone abroad from 1950 to 1959.

The American Field Service is a private, non-profit, educational organization whose purpose is the furthering of understanding and good-will among peoples of the world.

List Hints For Cooks
Neenah — Bake or boil sweet potatoes with their jackets on, to protect flavor and keep vitamin C and iron content high. For variety in menus, serve sweet potatoes fried, candied or baked in pies like pumpkin.

Buffet service is ideal for entertaining large numbers of guests. Plan a main course that is suited to informal service. Guests may help themselves or have the hostess serve from one end of the table.

When cutting marshmallows for salads and desserts, keep in a plastic freezer bag tucked away in the freezer. When ready to add them to a recipe, just cut them into the mix while they are still freezer cold. They never stick to the scissors when cut while cold.

was accomplished under the administration of Forrest R. Polk, president from 1931 until his retirement last June. During Polk's administration Oshkosh State college became the first state college to break the 2,000 barrier, McIntyre told the group.

Warnings of Problems McPhee warned that the new president faces a host of problems, among them the need for adequate facilities, increasing enrollment, the recruiting and keeping of a competent faculty. His problems are greater than in the past, he said, but echoed Prof. James' statement that Guiles' "background should prove of value, because he understands teaching." Marshals for the receptional, as well as the processional, were Misses Alberta Graham, Neenah, and Agnes VanBuren, Brandon. Organ music for the faculty march was played by Mrs. Florence Hollenbeck.

New President Tells Problems Colleges Face

demand to provide efficient use of such facilities."

The problems of course of ferings need major attention, Dr. Guiles said. "As a college, we must offer a program of studies appropriate to the needs of the student in the era in which he is living."

"We have many weaknesses to correct and many potentials to fulfill in American education. But we also have great strengths and great accomplishments to protect. As we study our educational system to note where it fails to match the high ideals we have for it, let us keep clearly in mind that ours is an American system, evolved to serve the special needs of a free society," he urged.

"We can ill afford to import systems of education or copy the aims of another nation. We shall grow strong as we try to solve our own problems in the light of our own indigenous needs, by trying to surpass ourselves rather than some other nation."

'Do Not Minimize'

In stressing the importance of science education, he stated that we should not minimize other areas of study. The philosopher, the historian, the social scientist, the student of languages and literature share with the scientist the promise of the future, Dr. Guiles mentioned.

As for the needs of future teachers, Dr. Guiles stressed that no college can be greater than its faculty. "Just as water does not, of its own accord, rise above its source, so a college can be no better than the faculty that gives direction to the program."

For the immediate future, he said, the rising number of students will outrun the supply of college teachers. "For the next decade at least, most of the new college instructors will be drawn from the group born before World War II, the so-called baby famine years."

This morning, many cars were parked on the lower lake ice at fishing shanties.

State Bounty Bill Revised

Senate Version Would Have Money for Program Come Out Of General Conservation Funds

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — The sportsmen of Wisconsin are likely to get the fox and wolf bounty program for which they have been clamoring.

The state senate has adopted by a strong vote a bill to restore the bounty payments suspended a couple of years ago at the request of the state conservation department, but upon the condition that the money for such payments shall be withdrawn from the regular fish and game fund of the state.

Because the state assembly last spring had approved a similar proposition — the lower house endorsed a plan for higher hunting license fees — the senate compromise version is likely to be concurred in by the assemblymen soon.

Bounty Payments
Bounty payments may run to a quarter of a million dollars a year. Historically the bounty program has leaned heavily upon the general state tax treasury for financing.

Democrats in the legislature had been reluctant to restore bounties, in spite of the popular pressure for such action, in part because of the prospective cost in a time of budget deficits, in part because the state conservation department has repeatedly testified that such expenditures are virtually useless in controlling predator populations.

But when it became apparent that they could not stop the bounty appropriation measure in the senate, Democrats offered an amendment to require the conservation fund to bear the whole cost of such disbursements and it was quickly approved in a bipartisan vote.

No Joke
Sen. Clifford Krueger of Merrill, representing a big section of north central Wisconsin, keynoted the argument for the spending of public money to reward hunters, farmers and others who kill foxes and coyotes.

"Some people joke about bounties. But this program is important. It is serious, this matter of protecting the people's property," he said with a reference to the killing of game birds and animals, as well as poultry, by the wild animal marauders.

Several senators blamed the low population of pheasants this year upon the excessive population of foxes.

In the center photo Marlene Egan, 18, town of Lebanon, shows off her first buck, a 7-pointer dropped behind her home. She lives about two miles west of Sugar Bush. Dan Koller, right, a 16-year-old Appleton gunner, shot his 170-pound, heavy-racked buck in Waushara county.

Roadchecks Snare Illegal Hunters

Lack of Sportsmanship, Evidence Of Desire to Break Law Observed

BY JOHN WELLS

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Waupaca — It's hard to believe. Men, and women too, who purchase deer hunting tags are presumed to be sportsmen.

Yet, the contrary is increasingly evident. Especially to wardens who worked on roadblocks to check for illegal deer and venison this season.

Although the majority of vehicles stopped contained properly tagged and registered deer, a large number contained illegal meat — usually well hidden from the eyes of the searching wardens.

At the season's last road block check manned by Waupaca area wardens warning signs and flares were set up on Highway 10 about two miles south of Weyauwega. Lots of deer were being taken south from the north country.

Worst Example

Most of the hunters were a happy lot — they had their game and shot it legally. Others didn't.

Perhaps the worst example of sportsmanship was two youths in their mid-twenties. Their cargo was one unregistered fawn. Weight? Fifty pounds at the most. It was about the size of a hunting dog. It had no tags.

The pair had been stopped once Sunday by wardens checking on, another item. The fawn was confiscated and the "hunters" ordered into Waupaca justice court.

Another hunter driving a stationwagon loaded with camping gear had a neatly wrapped hind quarter and another package of venison. Where were the tags marking the meat as legally registered? There weren't any.

The meat was confiscated and the hunter ordered to court. He was angry.

Another hunter didn't have any venison in the car. He was heading to see his girl, he said.

Lost Hunter

A stationwagon which appeared to avoid the checking station was halted by wardens. It contained a hunter, his wife and small daughter. In the wagon were clothes, hunting gear, furniture, luggage and a miscellany of everything. He said he had no illegal venison — and he didn't. He was just lost.

One other hunter and his wife had a cardboard box filled with neatly packaged venison of all types — steaks, chops and ribs. But they didn't have a tag to prove ownership or legality. The venison was confiscated.

One of the newer type violations which increased this year, according to wardens, was carrying another's tag.

Examples are the woman who was asked Sunday afternoon for her hunting tag. "My husband has it," she replied. Her husband was arrested.

The Lesson

Are the sportsmen who are hauled into court after an evening of road checking poverty stricken? Do they need the venison to tide them through the winter? Apparently not. All who have appeared in Waupaca courts this season have been able to pay fines averaging $50 each.

Each year more hunters learn a lesson in conservation of game through the court system. Many know the lessons and follow regulations. But, some will continue to sneak home their deer — and roadblock checks next season will educate another group.

Deer Season Over

Warden Bemoans Lack Of Sportsmanship

BY CHUCK WRANOSKY

Outagamie County Game Warden

With deer gun season over there remains only the late bow and arrow season which runs through Dec. 31 and rabbit and squirrel shooting which continues through Jan. 31 of next year to occupy hunters.

Gunners must remember that hunting hours are getting shorter to make a kill regardless of thought of a person's life, property or the sex of the deer.

Instead of hunters we now have many meat hungry maniacs in the woods who shoot any type of deer they see, chase the animals with cars and, generally, conduct themselves in an unsportsmanlike manner.

I hope that someday people will realize that deer hunting is a sport. I hope they will come to know that it is not what you get out of hunting but the way you hunt that counts.

Ice Fishing

Now is the time when you either have or will move your ice shanty onto the lakes. Let's not forget what happened last year. You will remember an excessive amount of snow made shanty removal a real problem. Let me suggest that when you feel you may not use your shanty regularly, you either remove it from the ice or bring it close to shore.

Each fish shanty must have the name and address of the owner or occupant painted on the outside. This must be on the structure itself and not just a piece of paper or board attached to the structure.

Radph Raiche, Route 3, Appleton, displays a big Canada honker he bagged on a hunting trip to Horicon marsh the day before the season closed. Raiche downed the bird while shooting from blind 24 on the west side of the marsh.

Report Heavy Illegal Kill At Necedah

Madison — (U) — The state conservation department said today a survey showed five illegal deer killed for every two taken legally in the Nov. 27-29 season in the Necedah wildlife refuge in Juneau county.

"This is a serious indictment against a small percentage of the hunters in that area," said James Taylor, public information officer for the department.

"It means that hunters who have produced 1,000 for furbearers are killing their own sport," Taylor added.

The refuge contains 33,000 acres and the spike buck season in the federally-owned property was authorized by the wildlife service.

State Survey

Taylor said a survey made by state and federal personnel resulted in the estimate that 720 illegally killed animals were left in the woods. These included does and buck and doe fawns. Prior to the check conservation workers salvaged the bodies of 100 illegally killed animals.

"In terms of reproduction," Taylor said, "these illegally killed animals would have produced 1,000 for furbearers."

Ankara —(AP)— Turkey anticipates the visit of President Eisenhower with an excitement unusual for this silent and often aloof land. Signs are popping up in strange places—"Turks like Ike too."

In peasant villages almost lost in the resolute plateau of Asia Minor, in sophisticated, cynical Istanbul, evidence of interest runs high.

"Our people seem to have a tremendous personal feeling about your president," a high ranking Turkish official said. "We have had applications from all parts of Turkey to come here to see him. Thousands of them. It's amazing."

During his 17-hour visit to-morrow and Monday President Eisenhower will see only the capital of this NATO ally of 25 million people, larger in area than Texas and as contrasting as Montana and Florida.

Washington Hindered By Lack of Artillery

at Stillwater, two thirds of the distance between Fort George (now the village of Lake George) and Albany, to obtain animals and sleds from Squire Charles Palmer. Returning to Fort George, thus supplied in part, Knox had an additional 42 heavy sleds made and finally collected 80 oxen for the big pull south to Albany, Schuyler, meanwhile, had dispatched men and horses from Albany and Saratoga to help Knox through the foothills of the Adirondacks.

Knox was an eternal optimist. But in following the rude woodland roads south to Albany he believed he would have to cross the unrelentingly frozen Hudson four times, although actually he had to cross it but once and the Mohawk once. Where open water confronted the teamsters, it was necessary to load sleds, guns and horses into scows for the crossing. Where the ice was too thin to support the train but too thick to permit boat passage, Knox was helpless. He frequently had to cut holes in the river's ice in order for the overflow of water to freeze and add to the ice's thickness.

Crash Through Ice

At Lansing's Ferry, near the mouth of the Mohawk River, the cavalcade tried to cross on the ice to the east bank of the Hudson. As a precaution, a 40-foot rope was tied to the first sleigh tongue and a teamster walked alongside with a hatchet, ready to cut the rope and save the horses should the heavy gun crash through the ice. Halfway across, the ice did give way, "and a noble 18 sank with a crackling noise, and then a heavy plunge to the bottom of the stream." The water fortunately was shallow and the gun was recovered, but the crossing at that point had to be abandoned. Back tracking, the train finally crossed the Mohawk at Klaus's Ferry on thin ice, remaining on the west side of the Hudson until Albany. One cannon was lost in the Mohawk and left there.

The first cannon, a brass 24-pounder, reached Albany on Jan. 4, 1776, somewhat behind Knox's schedule. Within three days the remainder of the guns had entered Albany for the final crossing of the Hudson.

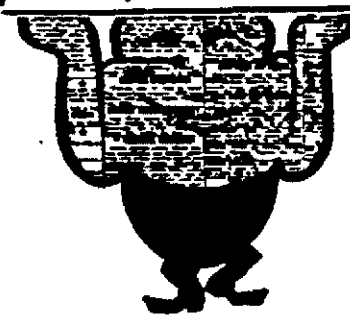

"Our appearance excited the attention of the burghers," wrote John P. Becker, a 12-year-old lad who served with his father as a driver for Knox. "This was the first artillery which Congress had been able to call their own, and it led to reflection not in the least injurious to our cause."

Over the Mountains

Knox hired some of the interested "burghers" at the pay of "one and four pence a mile, and, when . . . detained by breakages or other accidents . . . 15 shillings a day." Knox wrote Washington a pained letter on Jan. 3, while waiting for the ice to thicken at Albany: "The want of snow detained us for some days, and now a cruel thaw hinders from crossing the Hudson river . . . The first severe night will make the ice sufficiently strong; till that happens, the cannon and mortars must remain where they are. These inevitable delays pain me exceedingly."

Eventually the freeze arrived and Knox's artillery train streamed across the Hudson. Continuing south, Knox arrived at Claverack, where a broken sleigh detained him for two days. Knox then took the hazardous military trail used by only a few others, which headed east over the Berkshires, through Great Barrington, Otis and to Springfield on what is now Route 23. Using 80 oxen again in place of horses, Knox wrote, "We reached No. 1 (referring to Monterey, Mass.) after having climbed mountains from which we might almost have seen all the Kingdoms of the Earth."

More Trouble

Plunging into a 12-mile stretch called "Green woods," made dreary and forbidding by dense evergreen forests, Knox passed through what is now East Otis and reached Blandford, where more trouble awaited him. The descent of Glasgow (now Westfield) mountain had to be made. It required three hours of arguments by Knox to assure Hudson valley teamsters that the treacherous trip down could be made without danger from runaway, weighted sleds plummeting downhill upon them. Knox supervised the precautionary measures taken, such as drag chains, poles thrust under runners, and check ropes anchored to one tree after another.

At Springfield there was the broad Connecticut river to cross. The ice held, but on the far side the "noble train of artillery" bogged down in the mud of a sudden thaw. Knox paid off the drivers from New York State there and hired native teamsters. When the ground froze again he pushed on. At Framingham, he temporarily deposited most of the heavier pieces in order to rush the more portable cannon to Washington at Cambridge.

Back in camp, Knox learned that the colonists had accidentally acquired plenty of ammunition to fit his guns, thanks to an American warship which had captured the British supply brigantine, Nancy, and had salvaged her cargo of powder and shot.

Knox's artillery began a bombardment of Boston on March 2, 1776, and Washington moved men into Dorchester Heights in preparation for cannon installations there. The British didn't wait for these to materialize. Gen. Howe (Gage had been recalled some months before) made halfhearted plans for taking the heights and then decided instead to evacuate the city. He threatened to burn Boston if his embarkation was molested by Knox's artillery and, on this unpleasant note, took his departure practically undisturbed.

Mild Weather Spurs Renewed Quest for Body

Skindivers, Dragging Operation Slated for 3-Year-Old Boy

New London—Warm weather has softened the ice on the Wolf river and a major effort to recover the body of 3-year-old Gregory Fischer, believed drowned, is scheduled today, Police Chief Harry D. Macklin announced.

A large inboard boat with a steel hull will be launched here by the Brown county sheriff's office in an attempt to break through the ice and provide open water for dragging and skin diving operations.

The boy was last seen Nov. 19 in the backyard of the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Fischer, N. Water street. The backyard of the Fischer home is on the north bank of the river.

Extensive, futile search. Extensive skin diving operations were held during the first week of his disappearance. Operations, however, were hampered by the cold weather and the small areas which could be searched under the ice.

Volunteer skin divers from Green Bay, Appleton, Kaukauna, Milwaukee, Madison and other cities in the state have taken part in the search.

The skin divers reported that there are many snags in the river, where the body of the little boy could be trapped. They also reported that visibility is good, even under the ice.

Theories Given. It is believed that the boy did not sink to the bottom of the river because of his winter clothes. Skin divers pointed out that due to the strong current of the river and because of the boy's clothing, he may have been swept downstream from the home.

In most instances of drownings in the Wolf river, the bodies have been recovered in the immediate area of the accident.

The search also was extended in the Northport swamp which starts in front of the Fischer home and extends for three miles to Northport.

Crosby Boys Break Up Act

Cancel Contract at Montreal Night Club With 7 Shows to Go

Montreal—(U)—The four Crosby brothers, sons of crooner Bing, Thursday night split up their recently formed act and walked out on a $12,500 contract with a Montreal night club.

The breakup was confirmed by their manager, Peter Petito—who called it "temporary,"—shortly before the quartet was scheduled to appear for their second show of the evening.

In an interview, Petito denied the cancellation took place because of a reported family row in the dressing room.

A spokesman for the club said the group had seven more performances to go before fulfilling a 10-day contract.

Temporary Lay Off. "Because of their father's popularity, the boys have been in the limelight for years," said Petito. "As a result any irregular happenings in the family are always blown up completely out of proportion."

"There was no fist fight. We are just taking an early and temporary layoff for a few months."

"Gary (the oldest brother) has a throat infection and will not be able to perform for about six months. The boys all need a good rest."

No Play—No Pay. The club said the contract was canceled by mutual agreement.

Under a ruling by the American Guild of Variety Artists, the quartet comes under a "no play, no pay" regulation and therefore will not be paid for the shows performed, a spokesman for the club said.

In addition, they must pay the club for expenses incurred during their stay here.

The brothers—Gary, 26; Phil and Denis, 25, and

CBS-TV Plans Sunday All-Sports Series

Opera Star Patrice Munsel to Narrate Dec. 16 Special on Raising Children

BY JINGO. CBS-TV announced this week it will put a series of sports specials into its Sunday afternoon schedule.

The hour-and-a-half shows will be carried Jan. 3 through April 10 in the 2 to 3:30 p. m. time slot. Among sports which will be highlighted are rodeo, polo, Harlem Globetrotters' basketball games, sports car racing events from Daytona Beach, spring baseball training, rugby, tennis and speedboat racing.

A Milwaukee beer empire will sponsor. Opera star Patrice Munsel will narrate "You Can't Raise Children by the Book," the fourth program in CBS-TV's series of daytime "Woman!" specials, on Dec. 16. She has four.

The "Television at Large" special planned for noon today and Sunday on NBC-TV is the same review of NBC-TV programming trends which the network showed affiliates and more than 50 advertisers Nov. 12 in New York. Dave Garroway is starred.

Bob Hope has Ernie Kovacs, Rhonda Fleming, Rod Lauren and David Rose and his orchestra lined up for his pre-Christmas special next Friday night on NBC-TV.

The Friday night fights Lindsay, 21, were expected to leave for Los Angeles.

They made their Hollywood night club debut as a singing dancing group Sept. 25 to a cheering audience that included almost every Hollywood name but Bing himself.

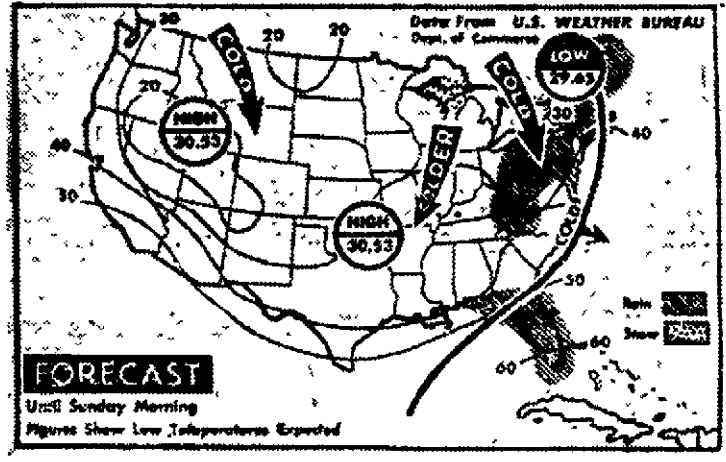

Petito was told there were reports the brothers staged a fiery argument in their dressing room—that words gave way to blows and that Gary left the room with a bloody nose.

The manager said "that's preposterous," he was in the room "and should know."

He also denied a statement by Norm Olsen, night club publicist, that the brothers were "uncooperative," failing to show up for outside personal appearances and interviews.

NBC-TV will begin colorcasts of its daytime features, "The Price Is Right" and "Truth or Consequences," a week from Monday. The nighttime "Price" shows have been colorcast since September, 1957, and "Truth or Consequences" was at one time.

"The Lineup," rumored to be in rating trouble, will be taken off the air at the end of January or early in February "in the interest of achieving greater overall program balance," CBS-TV announced this week.

Colder Weather Is Forecast tonight for the area between the Great Lakes and Gulf of Mexico. Cold is expected to extend into western New York and Pennsylvania as well as the southern plateau. Scattered snow flurries are expected in the lakes region.

Mercury Dips 10 Degrees in Fox Cities

Temperatures dropped 10 degrees from a high of 40 Friday to 30 today in the Fox Cities. It was caused by a new blast of winter air in the west and north.

Frosty air clamped on the Great Plains and Mississippi valley today. Temperatures tumbled as much as 25 degrees in Oklahoma, and 11 degrees in North Dakota.

The cold front, stretching from the Texas gulf coast up the Mississippi valley and into northern Michigan, triggered scattered showers.

At Gage, Okla., the mercury plunged 25 degrees — from 56 to 31 — during the last 24 hours. In the same period, Minot, N.D., went from 30 to 19 — a dip of 11 degrees.

Ahead of the cold front, eastern states had temperatures generally in the 40s.

The POWER of FAITH

by Howard Brodie

Faith is Woven Into the tradition of the Christmas tree.

Some authorities believe that the tree originated in medieval German plays when a Tree of Paradise was used to symbolize the Garden of Eden. Many believe that St. Boniface, the English missionary to Germany in the Eighth Century, offered the pagans a young fir, adorned in tribute to the Christ child, after he felled the sacred oak to the thunder god, Thor. He converted many pagans. There have been accounts that Martin Luther introduced the candlelight tree, to symbolize the starry heavens. It is thought that German settlers in Pennsylvania brought the tree to America. Prince Albert made it fashionable in England, when he and Queen Victoria celebrated their first Christmas in Windsor Castle in 1841.

Today large trees add warmth to community spirit, church trees nestle gifts to the underprivileged beneath their branches, and home trees, surrounded with gifts, reflect the beauty of nature, the glory of light and the joy of giving.

7th Graders Oppose Longer School Term

Frankfort, Ky. —(P)—A class of seventh graders has challenged the Kentucky Education association's proposal for a 10-month school term.

In a letter to the "state legislature of Kentucky" the 31 pupils at Martin school in Floyd county put it this way: "If some of America's great leaders such as Abraham Lincoln attended school only three months or less a year, why should we attend 10 months?"

The pupils said the extra money which would be involved could be used for other things—even for teacher salary increases.
